"SAME DANGER AS IN 1917"

ROOSEVELT ON THREAT TO DEMOCRACY

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in an Armistice Day broadcast yesterday from the National Cemetery at Arlington, said that a few years ago people questioned the sacrifice that had been made by the dead of the last war, asking "What did they get from it?" "To-day we know the answer—all of us," he added. "We know that these men died to save their country from the terrible danger of that day. We know because we face that danger once again on this day."

Mr. Sumner Welles, Assistant Secretary of State, said: "At any moment war may be forced upon us by that criminal paranoiac Hitler or by Japan."

President Roosevelt said: "Among the great days of national remembrance none is more deeply moving to Americans of our generation than the 11th of November—the anniversary of the armistice of 1918—a day sacred to the memory of those who gave their lives in the war which that day ended. Our observance of this anniversary has a particular significance in the year 1941; for we are able to-day, as we were not always able in the past, to measure our indebtedness to those who died. A few years ago—even a few months—we questioned, some of us, the sacrifice they had made.

"The danger which threatened this country in 1917 was real; and the sacrifice of those who died averted that danger. Because the danger was overcome people were unable to remember that the danger had been present. Because the United States armies were victorious people demanded why they had fought. Because freedom was secure people took the security for granted, and asked why those who died to save it should have died at all.

PRICE OF LIBERTY

"If our armies of 1917 and 1918 had lost there would not have been a man or woman in America who would have wondered why the war was fought. The reasons would have faced us everywhere. We would have known why liberty is worth defending as those alone whose liberty is lost can know it. We would have known why tyranny is worth defeating as only those whom tyrants rule can know. But because the war had been won we forgot, some of us, that the war might have been lost. Whatever we know or thought we knew a few years or months ago, we know now that the danger of neutrality and tyranny and slavery to freedom-loving peoples can be real and terrible. We know why those men fought to keep our freedom—and the people's liberties are wars worth fighting and worth winning at any price. 'What did it get you?' The men of France—prisoners in the cities victims of searches and seizures without law, hostages for the safety of their masters' lives, robbed of their harvests, murdered in their prisons—the men of France would know the answer to that question.

FOR ALL TIME

"They know now what a former victory of freedom against tyranny was worth. The Czechs, too, know the answer. The Poles, the Danes, the Dutch, the Serbs, the Belgians, the Norwegians and the Greeks. We know it now. We know that it was in literal truth to make the world safe for democracy that we took up arms in 1917. It was in simple truth and in literal facts to make the world habitable for decent self-respecting men that those whom we know and remember gave their lives.

"They did not die to make the world safe for decency and self-respect for five years or ten or, maybe, twenty. They died to make it safe, and, if by some fault of ours who lived beyond the war, its safety has again been threatened, then the obligation and the duty are ours. It is our charge now, as it was America's charge after the Civil War, to see to it 'that those dead shall not have died in vain.'"

WAR ANY MOMENT

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—At any moment war may be forced upon us by that criminal paranoiac, Hitler, or by Japan, said Mr. Sumner Welles at a Memorial Service at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson to-day. He urged America not to stand aloof once more from "all effective and practical form of international concert, where, in our participation could ensure the maintenance of a peaceful world in which to live safely."

Stating that the United States is pledged to "spare no effort and no sacrifice in bringing to pass the final defeat of Hitlerism and all that that evil term implies," Mr. Welles asked: "Can we afford again to refrain from lifting a finger until gigantic forces of destruction threaten all modern civilisation, and the raucous voice of a criminal paranoiac, speaking as spokesman for these forces from the cellar of a Munich beer hall, proclaims as his set purpose the destruction of our own security and the annihilation of religious liberty, political liberty and economic liberty throughout the world?

FAR EAST

"In the Far East the same forces of conquest, under a different guise, are menacing the safety of all nations that border the Pacific Ocean. We have no doubt of the ultimate victory of the forces of liberty and human decency, but we cannot know, we cannot yet foresee, how long and how hard the road may be."—(Reuter.)

COLONEL KNOX

NEW YORK, Tuesday.—Colonel Knox, U.S. Secretary of the Navy, said, at Providence, Rhode Island, to-night that the United States could no longer ignore Japanese actions which violated American rights and added: "The hour of decision is here." In his address, dedicating a vast new naval air base at Providence, Colonel Knox called for "instant readiness for defence" in the Pacific as well as in the Atlantic, because "interests which are vital to our national security are seriously threatened."

WARNING AGAINST SABOTAGE

FEAR OF WIDESPREAD DAMAGE

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Warning against a plot to wreck the United States munitions industry was given by General Marshall, Chief of the United States General Staff, in a broadcast to-night. He said: "At a given moment wholesale sabotage may be attempted by a far-reaching organisation which has secretly and ceaselessly been planning for just such an occasion." He also denounced German "scheming" to disrupt Army morale by propaganda among families of serving men.—(Reuter.)

U.S. SAILING SHIPS CHARTERED

It is learned from an American market report that five American sailing ships have been chartered to take cargo from New York to Dublin. The vessels range from 1,500 to 2,000 tons capacity, and the cargoes will be general, it is stated. The freight charges are quoted at £22 per ton.

No details of the chartering of these ships are available in Dublin. It is understood that it is being conducted by a number of Irish merchants through a firm of shipbrokers in Dublin.

ARMED LONDON MOTORIST

TWO DEAD AND SIX INJURED

A MAN driving a car yesterday through three London districts fired shots that killed a 26 years old crippled London solicitor, while he was about to buy a poppy, and injured six women, one of whom, Edith Amelia Barringer (57), died later in hospital.

The solicitor, Mr. Leslie Ernest Ludford, who walked with the aid of crutches, had left his home in Foster road, Chiswick, only a few minutes earlier, and stopped for a poppy at a street corner. As he fumbled in his pockets for some money, a shot was fired, and a girl who was walking along the pavement fell injured. Mr. Ludford made for the gateway of a house, but a second shot rang out, and he collapsed beside the gate. He died immediately after admission to hospital.

AN ARREST

Immediately that the second shot was fired a saloon car, which had been stationary across the road for some minutes, was driven quickly away. Armed police, in Flying Squad cars, scoured various districts in the area, and police on bicycles patrolled residential roads; shopkeepers were warned. Some hours after the first shooting, which took place about 9 a.m., a police car on patrol on the Watford by-pass at Edgware rammed a private car, stopped it, and arrested a man.

The shootings took place at:—

Duke's avenue, Chiswick—Mr. Ludford fatally injured; girl injured.

Bruton Way, Argyle road, West Ealing—Woman fatally injured.

Bollo lane, Acton—Woman injured.

Chiswick High road—Two women injured.

Hartington road, Chiswick—Woman injured; and Hamlet Gardens, Chiswick—Woman injured.

The first injured girl was treated for an injured foot at a doctor's house.

Mr. Stanley C. Randall, of Hadley Gardens, told a reporter that he ran into his front bedroom on hearing two reports, and saw a motor car parked opposite his house.

"In the middle of the street was a man armed with a sporting twelve-bore shotgun, apparently pointing at something in my garden. I ran to the other side of the window, and, there, in the corner of the garden, a man lay on the ground. By the time I got to the front door the man with the gun was in the car and away. I ran to the wounded man, who was just conscious."

MISTAKEN FOR MILKMAN

It is believed that after leaving Hadley Gardens the man drove to St. Mary's Grove, a quiet road behind Turnham Green. He stopped opposite a house of two flats occupied by Mrs. New and Mrs. Emily Crisp, rang the bell and returned to his car. The milkman was due—actually he was round the corner—and the moment the two women opened the door to collect their milk shots rang out and seriously wounded both of them. The car was then driven quickly away in the direction of Hartington road. A neighbour said that she did not think either Mrs. New or Mrs. Crisp knew the man.

Two of the other injured women are Mrs. Harriett Fell, of Bollo lane, Acton, who was wounded twice in the arm and is in Acton Hospital, and Mrs. Violet Pinder, of Foster road, Chiswick, who is in hospital with gunshot wounds in the legs.

FIRE PREVENTION SCHEME

Occupiers of premises in the Westmoreland street-Fleet street-D'Olier street triangle block will meet in the Irish Times office to-day to discuss the organisation of the block as the first unit in the Dublin Fire Prevention scheme. The organisation of the block, which is being carried out under the direction of Major Comerford, Dublin Fire Chief, will be used as an example to similar organisations all over the city.

BELFAST ELECTION

Mr. F. K. Lavery has been chosen as Unionist candidate for the Willowfield Division of Belfast, in place of Mr. Arthur Black, who has been made Recorder of Belfast. Mr. H. Midgely will be the Labour candidate.

WORKERS FROM EIRE IN THE NORTH

STATEMENT BY MR. J. F. GORDON

SUGGESTIONS that unskilled workers are being brought from Eire into Northern Ireland were denied by Mr. John F. Gordon, Minister of Labour, in the Northern Ireland House of Commons yesterday.

Answering a question by Professor Corkey, who referred to reports to that effect in the Press, Mr. Gordon said that, as a result of the shortage of certain skilled men, important national work was being retarded, and with the concurrence of the building industry his Ministry brought temporarily from Eire a number of craftsmen, such as bricklayers and joiners. The Ministry had not at any time recruited unskilled workers from Eire, and he added that the working conditions of the skilled men were those of the districts in which they were employed, and their allowances were not more favourable than those of Northern Ireland men employed there, or in Great Britain. An unmarried man did not receive a lodging allowance in Northern Ireland or Britain, unless he was the support of his home.

After a series of questions, in which it was suggested that the men from Eire were replacing Northern Ireland men sent to Britain, Mr. Campbell, K.C. (Nationalist), said:—"Is it not a fact that these men from Eire are giving every satisfaction in their work and earning every penny of their wages?"

Mr. Gordon—I am not a judge of the man on the job, but up to the moment I have had no complaints of any of the men brought in to perform work of national importance.

Mr. Campbell—Does the Minister approve, in this time of w of drawing a line between Irishmen, whether they belong to North or South?

Mr. Gordon—No; I do not.

When the matter was raised on the adjournment, Mr. Gordon said that some contractors might have brought in labourers, but he could not prevent that.

SIX MORE SHIPS SUNK

CONVOY LOSSES IN MEDITERRANEAN

A British Admiralty communiqué last night stated:—

"Further successful action by H.M. submarines under his command have been reported by the Commander-in-Chief Mediterranean.

"Four enemy troopships, or supply ships, and two sailing vessels, have been sunk, while two armed merchant cruisers and two supply ships have been seriously damaged.

"Three of the four ships destroyed were sunk by torpedo. One was of large and two of medium tonnage. The fourth, also of medium tonnage, was sunk by gunfire.

"One of the two sailing vessels sunk was flying the Nazi flag.

"The Italian armed merchant cruisers were escorting convoys when they were attacked. One was a vessel of about 8,000 tons, and the other was of the Citta di Palermo Class of over 5,000 tons. One of the damaged enemy supply ships was of medium size. This vessel was attacked by gunfire and left in flames. The other, a tanker, was hit by torpedo."

SUBMARINE FOLLOWS UP SUNDAY'S ATTACK

The British Admiralty yesterday announced that three Italian destroyers were sunk, and two seriously damaged, in the attack on an Axis convoy in the Mediterranean last Sunday.

The communiqué continues:—

"Further reports have established that two destroyers were sunk and one damaged by the force commanded by Captain W. G. Agnew, R.N., during the night action which ended with the total destruction of the Italian convoy.

"Later the remnant of the Italian naval escort was intercepted and successfully attacked by one of H.M. submarines.

"Two enemy destroyers were hit with torpedoes. One was seen to sink."

MARSHAL PETAIN'S CANADIAN ANNUITY

QUESTION IN BRITISH COMMONS

Mr. S. S. Silverman (Labour) was cheered in the House of Commons yesterday when he suggested that the country would not approve of the transfer of an annuity of £600 taken out by Marshal Pétain in sterling with a Canadian company in 1927.

After Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had explained that an exception had been made because the Marshal is head of a State still in diplomatic relations with Canada, Mr. Silverman criticised this "exceptional treatment given to the head of a State who is working as hard as he can against the interests of this country in the worst life and death struggle in its history."

Sir Kingsley Wood replied that the Government thought it would be a petty act to stop payment. He added, in reply to another question, that he was considering the position of parents of children sent to America who were unable to send money out of the country for the maintenance of those children.

MEDICAL COUNCIL MEETING

At a meeting of the Medical Registration Council for Ireland the President, Dr. Denis J. Coffey, M.A., M.B., LL.D., in the chair, two cases of complaint against registered medical practitioners were considered; in one, the Council decided that an inquiry under the rules should be held in January, 1942; in the second case it was decided to postpone further consideration for the present.

The attention of the Council was drawn by the National Health Insurance Society to the prevalence of loose or irregular certification by medical practitioners under the National Health Insurance Acts—the Council decided to issue a warning notice to all registered practitioners resident in Eire. It was agreed that visitation of examinations would not be practicable in the forthcoming year owing to difficulties in public transport. The report of the hon. treasurers was accepted and the hon. treasurers re-appointed for the coming year. Committees were re-appointed and the Registrar re-appointed.

PACIFIC PEACE STILL IN THE BALANCE

TOKYO'S ACTION DEPENDS ON THE U.S.-KURUSU TALKS

WHILE Japan was stated in some quarters in Tokyo yesterday to be pondering on Mr. Churchill's Mansion House warning, the speech was regarded in other circles as either a threat or bluff, which would fail to move Japan.

A Japanese Army spokesman in Shanghai, who thought the speech "highly regrettable," asserted that unrest in the Pacific was solely due to the Anglo-American policy of aiding Chungking. How long Japan would tolerate this would depend, he thought, on Mr. Kurusu's mission to Washington.

Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador, apparently on instruction received from London, yesterday visited the Japanese Foreign Office for discussion which, diplomatic circles said, centres on Mr. Churchill's warning that Britain would declare war against Japan within an hour if Japan decided to fight the United States.

CHURCHILL SPEECH REACTIONS

Japanese opinion is apparently uncertain how to interpret Mr. Churchill's warning, according to a Reuter telegram from Tokyo. Private circles infer a desire to influence the Japanese-American discussions, while well-informed quarters, according to the Domei Agency, view the speech as consistent with previous attempts to prevent a Japanese-American clash, and consequent interruption of the flow of aid to Britain.

The Nichi Nichi Shimbun declares that "Churchill's outrageous remarks," are aimed at involving America in war with Japan to protect British interests in the Far East. Belittling British naval strength, the newspaper adds that Mr. Churchill and General Chiang Kai-shek have become the "faithful dogs of the United States."

The Yompuri Shimbun declares the Japanese people were burning with anger over Mr. Churchill's declaration, and said: "Britain is dancing to the tune of the United States, and digging her own grave."

The newspaper added that the Japanese were willing to show a magnanimous spirit in co-operating with America.

OPINION IN BERLIN

A semi-official statement in Berlin yesterday says:—

"The irresponsibility shown by the British Premier in his provocative utterances towards Japan and the arrogant assertion that Britain has a large fleet ready in the event of a Japanese-American conflict has not been overlooked in the Wilhelmstrasse. Churchill knows quite well that he cannot win the war. The only thing he can do is to postpone the evil day. British policy has always been one of procrastination, which explains the search for fresh theatres of war."

U.S. DESIRE FOR PEACE

Senator Tom Connally, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said yesterday in Washington that he was confident President Roosevelt would not reject any Japanese proposals that really meant peace for the Pacific and "decent treatment" for the Chinese.

"I feel sure the President wants peace in the Pacific, but if Japan keeps all China's big cities, that means she is keeping her feet on China's neck."

Senator Connally predicted a "settlement or a crisis" in the Pacific after Mr. Kurusu's arrival.—(Reuter.)

"FAR EAST WAR INEVITABLE"

"War in the Far East seems inevitable, and Thailand may become the battleground in the event of a clash between Britain, the United States and Japan," says the Bangkok newspaper, Srikung. The country's strategic importance and abundance of natural wealth may easily convert it into a theatre of war.

Prominently displayed in the Japanese Consulate at Bangkok is a circular to Japanese nationals urging them to "behave." The circular states that deportation or the forfeiture of certain privileges may result if the warning is not heeded.

According to Batavia Radio 1,600 Japanese left the Netherlands East Indies on Monday. Another ship is expected shortly to embark a further batch of Japanese.

SINGAPORE READY

International quarters in Singapore yesterday believed that Mr. Churchill's blunt declaration that America's war would be Britain's should Japan provoke a conflict in the Pacific, would have a powerfully deterring effect upon the Tokyo warlords. Should Japan disregard what many considered to be an unqualified last warning, however, authoritative sources were confident that the British Empire's Pacific defence network, centred on Singapore, would be well able, not only to stand the strain of safeguarding Britain's vast interests, but also to take a full share—military and political—as an ally in war in the Pacific.

Naval quarters were convinced that years of patient preparation and the expenditure of tens of millions of pounds, as well as the application of lessons learned in two years of war in Europe, had prepared Singapore to fulfil the rôle which would be hers, should an eastward spread of the conflict bring the battle fleet Mr. Churchill promised in such an eventuality. Ten thousand trained personnel, well-equipped workshops, drydocks, and underground depôts, would enable the Singapore naval base to serve as a giant repair and supply station for the British Fleet, and also for any Allied warships.

Protecting the Singapore naval base and the great tin and rubber producing Malaya peninsula from invasion is an Imperial Army and Air Force, which competent non-British observers believe to be so strong and well-organised that it would require a Japanese force of nearly half a million men and more than 1,000 'planes, operating practically simultaneously, to give the Japanese any hope of gaining a foothold in Malaya.—(Associated Press.)

WHAT CHINA THINKS

Excitement runs high in Chinese quarters following Mr. Churchill's declaration. The Chinese particularly welcome this statement at a time when the Japanese are concentrating in French Indo-China, preparatory, it is believed, to a drive to cut the Burma road, says a Reuter Chungking message.

Mr. Churchill did not say that positive Anglo-American action would follow if Japan threatened the Burma road, but Chinese circles interpret his speech as clearly indicating that—

1—Britain's interest in the Far East and her determination to defend her rights and interests there are not overshadowed by European developments.

2—Britain's Navy, Air Force and Army in the Far East are ready to meet any eventuality, and are thereby in a position to adopt a stronger policy vis-a-vis Japan, which London might have hesitated to do a year ago.

3—Britain and the United States are not only planning joint action in the Far East, but are both prepared to act at a moment's notice.

4—Britain's full support of China and anxiety for an early restoration of peace and order there were clearly and forcefully enunciated in the Premier's speech.

CORONERS ACT

AN AMENDING BILL POSSIBLE

The Government has under consideration the introduction of a measure to amend the Coroners Act. The last amending bill was introduced in 1927, and it was believed then that most of the difficulties for Coroners had been removed. In fact, the Act has been found most satisfactory, and no radical changes are anticipated.

There are, however, a number of minor anomalies that might be removed, with satisfaction to the Coroners. One thing is the payment of expenses in connection with inquests. The amount that may be allowed for witnesses is fixed at 2s. For housing a dead body the Coroner can allow only 3s. 6d., and if he should hold an inquest on the body in the same house, may not add more than another 3s. 6d.

If a dead body is discovered in some outlying spot, the Coroner will order its removal to the nearest public-house (which may be miles away), and for this service the remover will receive the statutory fee of 5s. This scale of fees is regarded as anything but satisfactory by all concerned.

In the current issue of "The Journal of the Medical Association of Eire," the suggestion is made that it should be within the Coroner's power to call two medical men to participate in a post-mortem examination when he thinks such procedure necessary or advisable. At present this can only be done by order of the jury. In many cases, it is held, such help is necessary if an efficient examination is to be carried out.

DR. BRENNAN'S VIEWS

Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for County Dublin, told an Irish Times reporter yesterday that, though he personally was quite satisfied with the Act as it stood, there were one or two matters that he would like to see adjusted. There ought to be a morgue in every area, for one thing, said Dr. Brennan. At the moment there is none in the County of Dublin. Inquests should not be held in public-houses. Usually the body is housed in a stable or out-house attached to the premises, and, since children very often congregate there, the effect can be very bad.

Another difficulty that would be overcome by having a morgue in every area is that now experienced in holding post-mortem examinations. If a Coroner orders a "P.M." it must be held in the house of the people concerned or in the nearest public-house. Usually the houses are very small, and there are obvious difficulties here that might be removed by slight amendment of the Coroners Act.

RAIDS ON SICILY AND NAPLES

MESSINA POWER STATION BLOWN UP

MAINTAINING their offensive in the Middle East, Royal Air Force bombers on Sunday night again attacked points in Southern Italy, including Naples and Sicily, and also Axis bases in Libya, says the Press Association.

Marshalling yards at Naples, where stores are accumulated for the Axis forces across the Mediterranean, were left blazing, and bombs were dropped on other objectives in the town and docks.

A power station at Messina, in Sicily, was blown up.

In Libya, Benghazi was subjected to yet another raid, and last night's Middle East Royal Air Force communiqué says that aerodromes and other targets were "successfully bombed."

There was little to report in ground operations in Libya.

Command and Air Headquarters Nairobi, in a joint communiqué yesterday said:—"On November 7th our troops, advancing south, met with heavy, but ineffective artillery fire in the Kulkaber area. On November 9th our artillery successfully shelled enemy gun positions in the Ambazzo, Larei and Dava sector, silencing two batteries. Considerable enemy fire was drawn in return, but no casualties were suffered. Our patrols continued harassing the enemy in all sectors.

"Aircraft of the South African Air Force, operating in the Gondar area on Monday, machine-gunned enemy trenches at Sena. At Ambazzo, troops who had taken cover in trenches were attacked and huts and trenches bombed. Pilots successfully paid special attention to a number of well-placed enemy machine-gun posts.

"All our aircraft returned safely."

BOMB ATTACKS ON SHIPPING

A new Beaufort squadron of the Coastal Command, in its first operational flight, yesterday afternoon obtained an early victim. One flew across the North Sea to the Dutch coast and, when it came back, the first entry was made in the squadron's log—Supply ship attacked and sunk off Texel. "The Beaufort," states the Air Ministry News Service, "was piloted by the squadron commander, who, on sighting the ship, went down to mast-height to drop a stick of delayed-action bombs. 'We got at least one direct hit,' he said, 'but there was no great explosion or flame. I think we must have holed it though, for as we circled round we saw the vessel gradually settle down. Then the stem of the ship rose into the air, and it finally slid under the surface. It went down in four minutes. As we flew away we saw the crew struggling in the water to reach the floating wreckage.'"

"A Coastal Command aircraft on patrol off the Dutch coast to-day bombed and sank a small enemy supply ship," said an Air Ministry communiqué last night.

"Spitfires and bomb-carrying Hurricanes of the Fighter Command attacked targets in occupied France. The Hurricanes bombed a railway line, and Spitfires set fire to a hangar of an enemy aerodrome, machine-gunned a factory, and silenced enemy gun posts.

"Four aircraft of the Fighter Command are missing."

DAIL MEETING TO-DAY

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE DEBATE

When the Dail meets to-day a proposal will be made on behalf of the Government that in future the House will adjourn each evening at 9.30 instead as heretofore at 10.30. Should there be a motion on the adjournment the sitting will conclude at 10 o'clock.

An important debate will take place on the recent outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease. This will arise on a supplementary vote for £484,000 to be moved by the Minister for Agriculture for expenses in connection with the outbreak.

Other business will include the Electoral Bill, second stage; the Referendum Bill, Committee stage, and the Water Supplies Bill, Committee stage.

THE QUESTIONS

At question time Mr. E. O'Neill (F.G., Cork W.) will ask the Taoiseach what progress has been made by the Scientific Research Bureau in discovering substitutes for requirements hitherto imported, and when a full report of the Bureau's activities will be laid before the House.

Mr. P. Cogan (Ind., Wicklow) will ask the Taoiseach if, having regard to the recent declaration of His Eminence Cardinal MacRory on the subject of Peace by negotiation, any steps have been taken by the Government to ascertain the views of belligerent Governments regarding the possibility of opening such negotiations; or, alternatively, if the Government has discussed the matter with representatives of the Vatican or other neutral States.

Mr. W. Norton (Lab., Carlow-Kildare) is to ask the Minister for Supplies on what grounds the recent increase in the price of turf from 45s. to 64s. per ton in non-turf areas was authorised.

KERRY RAIL CRASH

DRIVER'S BODY FOUND

When breakdown gangs finished work at the scene of the fatal train crash at Ardcroe, Farranfore, yesterday (writes our Killarney Correspondent) about eight of the wagons had been pulled out of the chasm created by the collapse of the bridge and lowered to the sides of the embankments. The permanent way on the west side will have to be restored before the two cranes can be brought into action to lift out the 60-ton engine.

The body of the driver, Maurice Hogan, was recovered at three o'clock and brought to the sitting-room of the railway station at Farranfore, where it was placed beside the corpse of fireman Philip Hanaffin, which had lain there overnight.

Dr E. Shanahan, Farranfore, made a post-mortem examination, after which Superintendent B. Harte, Killarney, released the bodies to the relatives for burial.

The funeral will take place in Tralee to-day.

The inquest has been fixed for to-morrow. It is stated that the line may not be clear for traffic for several days.

GERMANS ADVANCE ON KERCH

RUSSIANS STEM FIERCE ASSAULTS

GERMAN and Rumanian troops advancing towards Kerch have occupied Mariental, some twenty miles from the town, it was claimed in Bucharest last night. In the Western Crimea troops from Yalta are stated to have made contact with units investing Sebastopol.

The Germans claim that their dive-bombers "have made Russia's Black Sea Fleet practically homeless."

Rome radio claimed last night that German troops have occupied Bakhchisarai, twenty miles north-east of Sebastopol.

Russian troops have thrown back a fresh German attempt to break through in the Maloyaroslavetz sector, Soviet radio announced.

In the Narofominsk sector Soviet artillery has dispersed infantry concentrations, reports "Pravda." It is also claimed that German assaults have been beaten off at four points near Moscow.—(Reuter and A.P.)

GAELIC-SPEAKING IRELAND

AIMS OF CORAS NA POBLACHTA

Speaking at a public meeting of Coras Na Poblachta, held in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night, Mr. T. O'Rourke dealt with statutory rights, unemployment, financial policy and family allowances; Mr. Hugh O'Neill with the Gaelicisation of the country and partition; Mr. Roger MacCorley with defence and national service; Mr. Sean Dowling outlined the general policy of the movement, and Mr. M. O'Mullane dealt with the immediate problems arising out of the emergency.

Mr. MacCorley said that the mishandling of the question of defence was one of the reasons why their movement had come into being. The Army, he said, should be free from all civil servants. The defence forces, he added, would loyally defend the State to the best of their ability.

Mr. Dowling said that what they wanted was a Gaelic-speaking nation and not a Gaelic-speaking corpse.

In reply to a question by a Fianna Fail T.D., who was present at the meeting, the chairman, Mr. Sean Fitzpatrick said that their movement had made serious genuine efforts to bring about unity in this country. They deplored anything in the nature of armed strife within the nation.

DJIBUTI FOR FRANCE

FAMINE CLAIMED UNDER BLOCKADE

VICHY, Tuesday.—A determination to keep Djibuti, blockaded French Somaliland port, free for France was announced by General Platon, Colonial Minister, to-day. "Djibuti retains all its strength," he said. "The resolve of this small, but ardent, colony is unshakable." Three British warships were forbidding entry to the port, and the population of 45,000 was dying of hunger, he affirmed. The French, however, were not taking their sacrifices without a fight.

According to another source, Admiral Platon also said that the troops were ready to face an attack by British or de Gaullist forces. "They will offer the utmost resistance," he is reported as saying, "and destroy the port and the Addis Ababa railway rather than surrender them to the British."—(Reuter.)

LONDON, Tuesday.—A large-scale Soviet counter-attack near Leningrad, in which 100 Soviet Army barges tried to cross the Neva, was reported by Luxemburg Radio to-night. The Radio added: "This attack, like countless others, was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy, and the greater part of the Soviet troops were scattered. Fifty of the barges were sunk."

German military spokesmen claimed that advances east of Leningrad and operations in the region of Lake Ladoga and Karelia were cutting off the Arctic, even if the fighting armies were hundreds of miles from the Northern shores.

German strategy "aimed at cutting off Russia's access to the Arctic Ocean and the Black and Baltic Seas," apparently in the hope of making delivery of American aid more difficult.

Although it was admitted that material help for Russia could be brought to the Northern ports, it was claimed that with the Germans at Tikhvin—about 110 miles east of Leningrad—and with the Finns and Germans making progress in the Ladoga area, it would be extremely difficult to bring materials arriving at Arctic ports down to the Moscow and Caucasian regions.—(Reuter and Associated Press.)

SOVIET SHIP SUNK

LONDON, Tuesday.—German Radio to-night claimed that a Rumanian submarine scored a direct shell-hit on a Soviet ship south-west of Yalta. The ship blew up and broke in two, the announcer said, adding that Soviet naval units searched unsuccessfully for the submarine for eight hours.—(A.P.).

150 HOSTAGES FOR BOMB ATTACK

Indigestion
& FLATULENCE AFTER MEALS

The reason why you get that burning pain and distressing wind after meals is because your stomach is always too acid. It sours everything you eat. Food simply can't digest and your stomach is tortured in the attempt.

Why endure this mealtime misery when 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets will stop it this very day? They relieve acidity and sweeten a sour stomach at once. The stomach starts digesting your food right away and finishes its work with perfect ease. You feel nothing—no heartburn, no flatulence, not a twinge of your old stomach pain.

If you suffer from acute attacks of gastric pain 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets will stop them in five minutes. Try them to-day!

Neat flat boxes for the pocket, 6d. and 1/-. Also family sizes, 2/- and 3/6 everywhere.

'MILK OF MAGNESIA' TABLETS

'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia.

Rugby Football

Changes Likely in Leinster XV.

BY OUR RUGBY FOOTBALL CORRESPONDENT.

ONCE again Leinster gave a disappointing display against Connaught, and, even though they won by a margin of eleven points at Galway last Saturday, very few of the players could have been satisfied with their form. Indeed, had an easy penalty kick been converted, Connaught would have been level at half-time and it might well have been a closer finish. Even though they always made a fight of it, the Connaught team lacked some of last year's qualities. They seldom trusted to an orthodox passing movement by the backs, but, on one or two occasions at Kilkenny twelve months ago there were signs of growing confidence by the three-quarters, who achieved dangerous runs. This seems to have been all forgotten again, and they relied on forward rushes last Saturday.

THORPE'S FAILING

The Leinster forwards got the ball back as frequently as possible, but Thorpe has the bad habit of standing up before passing, and this slight delay in sending out the ball enabled the Connaught wingers to hem in Carry to such an extent that the out-half could never make an opening. In consequence his centres suffered, but, even so, G. Quinn showed little ability to find a way through, nor did he give O'Flanagan any room in which to manœuvre.

Meehan ran straighter, and showed more constructive ability, than his partner, but Leinster's one trump-card, as always against Connaught, lay in the speed and opportunism of the wings, and the work of Chamberlain, and, to a lesser extent, O'Flanagan, decided the result.

The forwards, as I have remarked, stuck to their task well, J. Murray, of Lansdowne, making a successful début in the third row; and when the selectors meet on Monday to choose the team to play Ulster at Lansdowne road the following Saturday they are hardly likely to make many changes there. Behind the scrum it is, however, a different matter; and they are fairly certain to look for more thrust than is supplied by Carry and Quinn. There is not in Leinster at the moment a great deal of material possessing definite attacking qualities, but, perhaps, the Cosgraves, of Lansdowne, may find favour.

Even with Con. Murphy away at Galway, the Lansdowne defence was invulnerable to all the attacking Old Wesley could do, and they have now played six matches out of seven without conceding a single point. They are fortunate, indeed, to have a reserve full-back of the quality of B. Mathews.

Dublin's first visit from a Belfast team this season takes place this afternoon, when Queen's University will meet University College at the Bective ground, Donnybrook. The visitors are coming at full strength and, with experienced backs in Higson, Monteith, Campbell and Crouch, we should see plenty of attractive, open play.

University College are making an interesting experiment which may add badly-needed thrust to the back division, K. O'Flanagan going into the centre and B. Flanagan, captain of last year's Roscrea College XV., getting his first chance in senior football, on the right wing. If this move is a success, University College, with their powerful pack, should be successful.

Exciting Finishes at Harold's Cross

There was a very close finish in the handicap race at Harold's Cross Park last night. In the 550 yards race Genial Belle and Border Best were running neck and neck the whole way round, and they crossed the line together, the judge being unable to separate them.

HUNTING

SCARTEEN HUNT

On Friday, November 7th, the season was opened at Derk, where the field shared the generous hospitality of Mrs. Considine. Finding at once in covert, hounds pushed their fox out at the top end, and, running down through the lawn to the front gate, turned left-handed along the screens, through the deer park, and into Knockderk, where scent failed. Going on to Cross, a brace of foxes were soon on foot. Hounds hunted one to Woodville and back again to Cross covert; but, without delaying here, they ran on over the Limerick-Tipperary road and railway, and marked their fox to ground near Ballyvalode.

The Master and Mrs. Ryan, the Misses Ryan, Mr. T. Ryan, Mr. J. C. Ryan, Major and Mrs. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, Miss Gubbins, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Harris, Mrs. A. P. Harris, Mrs. Watt, Dr. and Mrs. Coffey, Miss Tudor, Dr. Russell, Mrs. Fennell, Mr. T. Hogan, Mr. Powell Harris, Mr. J. Corboy, Mr. Hickey, and Mr. Hayes were among those present.

LIMERICK HOUNDS

The grounds of Beechmount House, the residence of Major Waller; O'Neill's gorse and vicinity, and Keating's covert, were drawn blank on Friday, when the County Limerick Hunt met at Beechmount Cross-roads, Rathkeale.

Followers, however, who made the long trek to Russ, near Kilfinny, were rewarded with good sport. A fox forced out on the east side wheeled to the right, and the field went away in the direction of Ballingarry before checking. Returning to the covert, a second fox broke in the opposite direction, and, crossing the Rathkeale-Kilfinny road, headed for the grounds of Finniterstown House, to swing to the right for Graigue, near Adare. This proved an exceptionally fine run.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By MYLES NA gCOPALEEN

THE economic bloc of my Dublin WAMMA League have now nearly perfected their arrangements for inaugurating the Myles na gCopaleen Central Banking Corporation.

This bank will, of course, practise (and practise right up to the very hilt) the accepted banking game of usury, and will live in some gilded shambles that will be designed by our own little buck-intellectual, ballet-hooligan, verse-mouther and wearer of custard-coloured shirtings, to wit, Mr. Claude ffoney. A sum not exceeding £31 10s. 0d. will be charged for current accounts, and admission to the Bank's premises will entail a fee of sixpence a time, the management reserving absolutely their absolute right to refuse admission in their absolute discretion and no reasons given. No telephone calls will be dealt with or callers interviewed.

What is Behind the Move?

What, one may well ask, is the necessity for still another bank?

I will explain as simply as I can. The Myles na gCopaleen Central Banking Corporation will not only discount short-term bills drawn on maturing debentures ready and on call, but will also issue credit "zoning" coupons pari passu with movements in and out of the Sterling Equalisation Fund, not, as heretofore, on unliquidated Treasury balances or on the unredeemed "brokerage" transactions of the holding companies, but also the semi-consolidated note flotations of the rentiers. The holding houses will not receive "discounted" bonds save where the rentier cartel has adequate marginal operation to offset any drain of "dead money" caused by the premature amortisation of trustee-held debentures. That is the whole thing in a nutshell.

Desperate and bitter efforts are being made to dish this revolutionary innovation. The vested interests are pale with fear. The Banks' Standing Committee (from whom all authority is derived) has had to sit down. The Currency Commission has offered me a seat on the board ("two if you can use them, old man") provided I have "a bit of sense." Sense I will have if need be, but the cheque will require to be pretty fat.

According to Labour spokesmen, the national credit is at present in the hands of private profit-taking banks, who manipulate it to their own advantage. Where will we be when it is in the hands of my own bank only? What will happen to undiscounted "suspense" issues, which were hitherto converted into call-money by the holding houses?

In the kingdom of the blind the one-eyed man is banker.

Sad Affair at Sidney Parade

A lawyer friend of mine got into trouble recently. He entered a caveat and was had up by a Guard for entering it during prohibited hours. During the subsequent court hearing there was a lot of learned wrangling as to whether a caveat was a "place of public resort" or a "messuage" within the meaning of the Poor Relief (Ireland) Act, 1842, as extended and amended. The District Justice (need I say it all happened in the District Court?) got out of the mess by binding all the parties to the peace. The Guard was subsequently transferred to Swanlinbar.

Lost and Missing

"A passenger train which last night left a small railway station en route for Hjoerring, Denmark, has disappeared."
—Irish News, 30/10/'41.

Never mind, it will turn up somewhere all in good time. Meanwhile, any reader who comes across it here should report the matter to the nearest Garda Station, or ring me at this office.

In a recent issue of the "Irish Workers' Weekly," it appears that "Asterisk's" weekly article is missing. "We most sincerely apologise," says the paper, "that it got mislaid in transit between our office and the printer, and at the time of going to press it has not been found."

Nor will it be found. It is before me on my desk as I write and will appear in this column to-morrow.

What would happen, I wonder, if my own stuff got lost? Would the public stand for such a thing? Would a few words of apology suffice? Riddle me that, you rat.

"CRADLE SONG" AT THE GATE

"The Cradle Song" entered its second week at the Gate Theatre last night, and, seeing it, causes one to wish for a revival of others of these very beautiful plays of Gregorio and Maria Martinez Sierra. "The Cradle Song," like the other plays of these Spanish dramatists, has an unforgettable quality, and its simple, yet, dramatically clever, appeal to the emotions will remain in the memory of playgoers long after many more sophisticated modern plays are forgotten. It is full of good acting material, which is fully availed of by a most capable cast, which includes Bonnie Fagan, as the girl Teresa, Ann Penhallow, Cathleen Delany, Vivien Dillon, Maureen Halligan and Doris Finn.

£40 DAMAGES FOR FALL ON A FLOOR

John Elliott, 17 South O'Hanlon street, Dundalk, was awarded £40 by Judge Shannon in the Circuit Civil Court yesterday, damages from Bridie Donegan, 87 Marlborough street, Dublin, for injuries sustained while he was a paying guest on 22nd March last.

Mr. Elliott, who conducted his own case, said that a slippery substance had been left on the floor, causing him to slip and fall.

The defendant, for whom Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Corrigan and Corrigan) appeared, denied that the floor was dangerous, and pleaded contributory negligence.

TOO MANY JUMPERS

Trainers in England have received a letter from Messrs. Weatherby and Sons stating that there are over 700 horses in training under National Hunt Rules and that their strings must be reduced.

THE DEVEREUX CASE

TWO MEN BEFORE SPECIAL COURT

There was a sequel to the disappearance on September 26, 1940, of Michael Devereux, 27 years old petrol salesman, of Maudlinstown, Wexford, whose body was found on the mountainside near Slievenamon, Co. Tipperary, last September, when two men appeared before the Special Criminal Court at Collins's Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, in connection with the matter. The men were George Plant, a native of Tipperary, South Riding, and Joseph O'Connor, of Co. Kerry.

Plant was charged with having murdered Devereux in the County Tipperary on or about September 28, 1940, and O'Connor with counselling, procuring or commanding Plant to commit the murder.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. J. A. Geary, Chief State Solicitor's Office), who prosecuted, asked that the date of the trial be fixed for December 2. He said that there were serious charges, and that the Court had power to assign counsel for the defence if the defendants made application.

When asked if they had any objection to the date of their trial or if they wished counsel assigned for their defence neither of the accused men replied.

Fixing the trial for December 2nd, the President of the Court announced that every facility would be given to the men to prepare their defence if they made an application to the Court.

MALICIOUS DAMAGE CHARGE

Patrick Falvey, a young man with an address at Crotta, Lixnaw, Co. Kerry, was charged with maliciously damaging a threshing machine on October 3 and 4 last, causing damage to the extent of £21 2/4.

Evidence was given as to the finding of iron bolts and spikes in the machine and in sheaves of corn on the lands of Denis O'Connell and James Lawlor, of Crotta. James Lawlor had got portion of the land at Crotta under a Land Commission division, and said that he knew that the Falveys "had been looking for some of this land," but had not got any.

A Garda Sergeant said that on October 15, at William Street Garda Station, Limerick, Falvey made a signed statement admitting putting the bolts into the corn on O'Connell's farm, because he (O'Connell) had loaned his horse to Mrs. Twomey, one of those who got land at Crotta when it was divided. Falvey said that prior to the division his father had had portion of it for grazing purposes. A statement made by Falvey admitting putting spikes into Lawlor's corn was also read.

This concluded the case for the prosecution, and further hearing was adjourned until November 28.

OTHER CASES

Thomas Howley, Mooncoin, Co. Kilkenny, was allowed out under the First Offenders' Act, when found guilty of possession of incriminating documents. A Guard stated that he found three copies of a special communiqué in the pocket of an overcoat in a room occupied by the accused.

Mr. John J. Shiel, solicitor, defended.

Michael Quinn, Chapel street, Swinford, Co. Mayo, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment on charges of membership of an illegal organisation and possession of incriminating documents.

DUBLIN WOMAN'S WILL

BEQUESTS AMOUNT TO £26,000

Reserved judgment was given in a construction summons which was brought to have determined questions relating to bequests amounting to £26,000 in the will of Miss Emily Lucie Atkinson, late of Belgrave square, Monkstown, Co. Dublin, who died on February 22 last.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy held that her nieces, Mrs. Lucy M. Pollock, Droagh, Larne, Co. Antrim, and Mrs. Mabel K. Olive, Beresford road, Birkenhead, took an absolute vested interest in their respective legacies of £3,000 each, liable to be divested only by the executory gift-over in the will; and that her nephew, Lieutenant-Colonel N. C. Dobbs, Ottawa, took the same interest in respect of a bequest of £5,000; that a gift of "anything else" to her sister, the late Mabel F. Atkinson, was not a general residuary gift, and that the gift of the "remainder" of the residue carried the real property belonging to the testatrix at death, though acquired after the will; that the testatrix made an effective residuary gift in the words: "The residue, I leave £10,000 to my sister, Mabel F. Atkinson; the remainder to my nephews in equal shares"; and that under the residuary gift that sum went in equal shares to Lieutenant-Colonel Dobbs and Conway E. Dobbs, Glenariff Lodge, Parkmore, Co. Antrim, another nephew, together with testatrix's one undivided third share in 29 Belgrave square.

It was not disputed, said Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, that an earlier legacy of £5,000 to the late Mabel F. Atkinson fell into the "remainder" of the residue. He allowed all parties their costs out of the estate.

Mr. R. St. J. Chadwick, K.C., and Mr. F. C. Matheson (instructed by Messrs. Matheson, Ormsby and Prentice) appeared for Mr. R. N. Matheson, solicitor, the executor; Mr. E. J. Phelps, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. E. F. Collins and Son) for Mrs. Pollock and Mrs. Olive; Mr. Overend, K.C., and Mr. E. S. Robinson (instructed by Messrs. Matheson, Ormsby and Prentice) for Lieutenant-Colonel Dobbs and Mr. C. E. Dobbs; and Mr. J. R. Coghlan (instructed by Messrs. Matheson, Ormsby and Prentice) for the minor children of Mrs. Pollock and Lieutenant-Colonel Dobbs.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, in the course of his judgment, said that no Chancery pundit warily picking his delicate way through the authorities could have selected plainer language than the testatrix in her holograph will to show that she meant to make a truly residuary gift.

COUNTY DUBLIN COLLISION

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

By direction, the jury found in favour of John McGuinness, market gardener, Sandy's lane, Rush, Co. Dublin, in the action against him by Michael S. O'Rourke, Labour Exchange manager and District Court clerk, The Square, Balbriggan, for damages for injuries suffered by Mr. O'Rourke when a motor car driven by him, and Mr. McGuinness's motor lorry were involved in a collision near Blake's Cross, on the Dublin-Balbriggan road, on December 24th, 1940.

Mr. Justice Hanna gave judgment accordingly for Mr. McGuinness with costs.

Mr. Charles S. Campbell, K.C.; Mr. Roe, K.C., and Mr. J. O'Doherty (instructed by Mr. G. L. McGowan) appeared for Mr. O'Rourke, and Mr. Fitzgerald, K.C.; Mr. Casey, K.C., and Mr. T. Doyle (instructed by Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Sons) for Mr. McGuinness.

£170 FOR DUBLIN WOMAN

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

Judgment for £170, the damages assessed by the jury, and costs was given in favour of Mrs. Eileen Dale, 24 B Block, Patrick street, Dublin, in her action against Patrick Morris Boothman, 46 Henry street, Dublin, for damages for injuries suffered by reason of her having been knocked down by Mr. Boothman's motor car at Patrick street, on March 15th, 1940.

Mr. Nolan Whelan, K.C., and Mr. Carroll O'Daly (instructed by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy) appeared for Mrs. Dale, and Mr. J. M. Fitzgerald, K.C., and Mr. William Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. James Fagan) for Mr. Boothman.

CHARGE AGAINST 68 YEARS OLD MAN

Charged in the Dublin District Court with indecently assaulting three children, Owen Fegan (68), carpenter, O'Daly road, Drumcondra, was bound to the peace by Mr. Hannan, Senior Justice, yesterday, a condition being that he is not to reside in Drumcondra or Whitehall. The Justice said that he took into account defendant's age and previous good character.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PROTESTANTISM IN IRELAND

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I am a Protestant serving in the Irish Army, and would like heartily to endorse the views expressed by your correspondent, "Inisfail," in his recent letter.

For many years now, as a citizen of a sovereign State, I have felt that I could not agree with the political attitude taken up by our Church, which makes itself at present apparent in such forms as prayers for the Allied Powers, their leaders and their armed forces, singing of the British National Anthem, and, indeed, often in sermons from the pulpit, which are so biassed as to resemble speeches by the more fiery politicians. If we pray for Britain, why not for Germany? This is a neutral country, and both belligerents mean equally little to me. I have sounded many of my friends and acquaintances on these matters, and have found that the great majority feel as I do—that a different political outlook was estranging them from their Church and causing them to lose the higher benefits of its services.

During the past year I have been stationed at various points in County Dublin, and consequently have attended several different parish churches for Divine Service. With one exception I have never heard prayers offered for the Irish forces, although soldiers, sailors and airmen of other nations were always remembered. I do not think that this attitude is quite fair to those who have considered that the truest patriotism lies in serving their own country.—Yours, etc.,

"ACTION."

Dublin, November 8th, 1941.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—May I congratulate you on your leader on this subject? I have followed the resulting correspondence in your columns with much interest. The chief impression left on me is of the feebleness displayed by the clerical protagonists in meeting the gravamen of the case made out by the laymen.

As I see it, the reverends have indulged mostly in shadow boxing and side-stepping. For example, the Rev. W. N. Harvey pounces on the apparent disagreement among the critics. Is is not the way of critics to disagree, and, in this instance, surely the reason is that where there is so much to criticise we have necessarily a great variation of views? Your correspondents write from widely separated parts of the country, and each presumably speaks from his experience in his own particular district. The plain conclusion seems to be that there is deep discontent in the country as a whole, and that it is not confined to either the younger clergy, on the one hand, or the elders on the other.

Canon Chamberlain's letter suggests that he is not cognisant of the facts of life in country parishes, while his remarks at the meeting of T.C.D. Theological Society, as reported in your columns, are rather disingenuous. It had not been stated of course, as he avers, that all men over sixty are incompetent, and one is surprised—or is one?—at the canon's resorting to this method of meeting the point. He does not appear, however, to deny that there are many clergy in the country who, because of years or indifference, are quite out of touch with the spirit and needs of the people—those who are mostly puzzled and anxious and looking in vain for guidance to a truly religious way of life. It would be interesting to have the canon's views—and also, in particular, those of the Rev. W. N. Harvey—as to the attitude of the Church of Ireland as a body of Christ's followers to the want and destitution, the tenements and the slums almost on their very doorsteps, or surrounding the place in which presumably they preach the Gospel of the One who said: "In as much as ye do it . . . . ." Or is it possible that they agree with one of the younger generation of rectors who in the writer's hearing cynically commented as his only contribution to a discussion of the subject: "It is all the fashion now to pity the poor"; and when one sees so many of these young clerics motoring daily through our countryside on their parochial, or more often, one suspects, on their social, rounds, it only seems reasonable to wonder whether in fact they are not in danger of losing the use of their legs. War, suffering, anxiety, fuel, food and even petrol shortages, and all the other miseries of these days seem very remote from them as they swish past the humble layman afoot or riding a resurrected crock. One almost exclaims with Ophelia:

"Do not as some ungracious pastors do
Show me the steep and thorny way to heaven,
Whilst like a puff'd and reckless libertine
Himself the primrose path of dalliance treads."

Complacency, as in other quarters, is one of the grave dangers besetting the Church of Ireland, and many of us fear that because of its lack of spirit and zeal, and its failure to grapple with the pressing social problems of to-day, it is rapidly ceasing to be a Church of Christ. Something more far-reaching than just investing £20,000 or so in a Security Loan is needed.

I suggest that one of the things we need is a company of bishops, who emulating their brethren overseas, will travel widely and frequently throughout the country, get to know intimately their humbler sons-and-daughters-in-God, and actively supervise and develop the work of the local pastor. Why should a bishop be to the ordinary layman merely an impressive figure in lawn sleeves whom he sees only on those rare occasions of, say, a Confirmation Service or arriving in a limousine to give the Church's blessing to a "fashionable" marriage. Can we not have just an ordinary man's bishop whom one could ask to tea?

The conclusion of the matter is that the time has come for change and reform. Many of us are not content just to sit around and wait for an Irish Wesley to be born. We want to see something done now, and if we write anonymously it is because we do not wish to hurt the feelings of individuals. Surely the clerics will accept this explanation, and, disregarding an anonymity, ask themselves if things really are as good as they say?

A less cumbrous system of control is needed in the Church. A smaller and an individually more virile general staff—not so many tabs and gaiters; more reality and less ceremonial; something more Christ-like—that is what people are looking for. Something big has got to happen, else we had better cease to "profess and call ourselves Christians."

Great reform is also needed in the training and selection of men for the ministry. Only those whose preordination days mark them clearly as earnest and competent soldiers of Christ are good enough.—Yours, etc.,

"SIXTY-FIVE."

KILKENNY COLLEGE, 1538-1938

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It has been felt by many friends of Kilkenny College that a tablet should be erected in St. Canice's Cathedral to mark the four hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the college. The names of Swift, Berkeley, Congreve, Magee, and other distinguished alumni of the school would be inscribed on the proposed tablet.

The project had the full approval of the late Primate Day, whose name will also be inscribed on the tablet, and other prominent Churchmen, as well as the members of the College Local Committee, have promised their support.

It has, therefore, been decided to open a fund for this purpose, and friends of the school are asked for their generous support. The probable cost will be from £70 to £80. Any balance over and above the cost of the tablet will be given to the Headmaster for the foundation of a quartercentenary medal.

Subscriptions may be sent to me, or to C. G. Shankey, Esq., Headmaster, Kilkenny College, Kilkenny.—Yours, etc.,

R. R. HARTFORD.

Gaelic Games

Second Leinster Title Won by Dublin

By PAT'O.

DUBLIN lost two major games this season (to Kerry in football and Cork in hurling), but finished their championship programme with two good wins, to take both Leinster titles in successive weeks. One must go back many years to claim dual provincial titles for any one county. Dublin's wide range of selection, though thinned by the non-resident rule, is still formidable enough to capture both All-Ireland titles should the present drive for co-operation develop in all grades.

Against Carlow in football, as against Kilkenny in hurling, there was a cohesion of movement which brought many scores. That understanding, especially in attack, will take Dublin teams far. Their ample training facilities in the Phœnix Park and elsewhere, their spacious pitches at Croke Park, Crumlin and Parnell Park, give Dublin many advantages denied to other counties. Their players are more concentrated and intimate with each others' methods—a great aid to championship success.

Once more Carlow's attack failed—they had fifteen overs in as many minutes. Through the field they were quite Dublin's equals; but they had no marksmen with the precision of Banks, O'Connor and Fitzgerald. Dublin's half-back line, led by Falvey, of Civil Service, was again a great success. Pat Kennedy, as full-back, was the find of the year. The St. Vincent's youth has played in every position from goal out, but has found his true berth now, and has solved Dublin's full-back problem.

Rivalry in West

Roscommon footballers have returned to a winning mood. They pulled out four of their minors that had won the All-Ireland, and the experiment proved a great success against Leitrim, who had held Mayo to a draw in the previous round. This new Connaught League promises to be a great success. Since winning the Railway Cup for the first time in 1934, Connaught football has been on a high plane. Mayo and Galway have no longer a monopoly west of the Shannon; Roscommon, Leitrim and Sligo have bestirred themselves, and the league may well be won by any of these young teams.

Connaught suffered for lack of winter competition in the past. Despite transport problems, attendances at league games are encouraging, and I expect Connaught to do well in the Railway Cup series next year. Three finals in four years have proved the worth of Western football, and their 1942 prospects are bright.

Dublin charity and league games will keep our pitches busy. A St. Vincent de Paul game of great attraction brings Faughs and U.C.D. together at Croke Park. Though Faughs' success in 1941 has been uniform, they never had much to spare when University College lined out against them. Most probably U.C.D. will be without Jimmy McCarthy this year, but they have secured two good freshmen in Thornton, of Galway, and Murphy, of St. Finbarr's, Cork. Both are skilful hurlers, and it will be remembered that Pierce Thornton, playing in the Fitzgibbon Cup at Belfield last spring, was the outstanding man of the Galway Collegians. At centrefield or in attack he is a big acquisition to U.C.D.

Kilkenny in Munster

Croom and Limerick are again hurling champions, though it was by a point margin that they defeated Mick Mackey's side.

Kilkenny has been brought into Munster for league purposes, and it is easy to visualise bright competition between five such level counties as Kilkenny, Cork, Tipperary, Limerick, and Waterford. Galway Wolfe Tones gathering strength rapidly had an easy win over Ballinasloe in the Galway final.

Coursing

Successful Start with Belsize Cup

(By MASTER McGRATH.)

The card for the first of the Cup meetings (the Belsize) at Higgingstown, Killucan, is much smaller than usual, but with so many adverse factors to contend with the Westmeath United Club are to be congratulated on their determination to carry on, and, on yesterday, providing a surprisingly large company with a right good day's sport, in perfect conditions. It was, indeed, a triumph and an excellent lead to other clubs. The two Trial Stakes fell flat, but the Cup filled to overflowing, and although the entry embraced few dogs of outstanding merit the trials were extremely interesting.

Four dogs from Mr. J. Shaw's Belfast kennels have won the stake—Seymour Hill, Son of the Sod, Sandiway and Shamrock Prince—and now his nomination is Farloe Nigger, much fancied for last season's Derby at Powerstown Park. He opened favourite at 3 to 1, and nothing moved so fast as this Northern black, who seems—bar accidents—to be well set for the stake.

Smokers' 'Fur'

How to detect it—How to prevent it

Try this now. Run your tongue round your mouth—do you notice it . . . a rough woolly feeling. Smokers' fur has got a hold, and is staining your teeth. But don't worry, you can stop this fur from ruining the look of your teeth.

Protect Teeth with new toothpaste containing *'MILK OF MAGNESIA'

Dentists know smokers' fur is caused by excess acid in the mouth. Kill the acid and you shift the fur. What is the scientific way to destroy mouth acid? 12,000 dentists say 'Milk of Magnesia' is the most effective antacid known. They recommend smokers to use the toothpaste containing 'Milk of Magnesia'—the only toothpaste containing it—Phillips' Dental Magnesia.

Commence fighting mouth acid to-night. Get a tube of Phillips' Dental Magnesia and clean your teeth with it each night and morning. Then you'll feel the difference; no more morning mouth; no more stale breath. Instead you'll have teeth which look clean, feel clean, are clean; a sweet mouth to give new zest to smoking. A mouth that will say Good morning! and mean it.

STORE CATTLE FROM IRELAND

SUGGESTED BRITISH STATE PURCHASE

Mr. Henderson Stewart (Liberal-National), in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Secretary for Scotland if he has given further consideration to the proposal to purchase, on behalf of the State, all store cattle coming from Ireland, for ultimate distribution by the State to live-stock markets throughout Scotland, and thereafter purchase in the usual manner by farmers, or what other method he intends to adopt to prevent excessive profits arising out of the keen demand for, and the short supply of, store cattle going to a few Irish cattle dealers.

Mr. T. Johnston—Whatever may be the merits of a permanent State purchase organisation for the acquisition and distribution of live-stock imports, the creation of such an organisation to meet a purely temporary situation would not, in my opinion, be justified, even if there were time to carry through the necessary negotiations. I may add that prices of two-year-old cattle have fallen by about 10 per cent. in Scottish markets since the decision to permit the resumption of Irish store imports was announced on the 14th October.

Mr. W. Dobbie (Labour) asked the Minister of Agriculture what steps the Government had taken to lift the embargo on Irish store cattle coming into Great Britain; and if he was aware that many markets in the country had been badly handicapped through the embargo.

Mr. R. S. Hudson—I am aware that the embargo, which it has been necessary on disease grounds to maintain for some months past on the entry of Irish cattle into this country, has inevitably created difficulties. I am glad to say, however, that in view of the improvement in the disease situation in Eire imports of store cattle were resumed from October 27, subject to certain safeguards against the possibility of introducing infection. In the interests of meat supply only the more forward animals are being admitted for the present, and a substantial proportion of the available shipping space will be needed for bringing in fat cattle for immediate slaughter.

Plain Chant Music. — Mr. Hubert Rooney, Professor of Plain Chant in the Royal Irish Academy of Music, lecturing last evening on this subject at the Catholic Library Association, 74 Merrion square, Dublin, said that he had frequently urged the establishment of Diocesan Schools of Music as the best means of establishing proper performance of this music.

RHEUMATIC PAIN MUST GO!

ROINN TALMHAIDHEACHTA.
(Department of Agriculture.)
EMERGENCY POWERS (NO. 124) ORDER, 1941.

NOTICE TO OCCUPIERS OF LAND.

The above-mentioned Order, made by the Government, provides, subject to certain exceptions, that every occupier of ten or more Statute acres of arable land shall, in 1942, cultivate an area equivalent to not less than one-fourth of such land.

For the purposes of the Order an occupier is defined as the person who is rated, or is liable to be rated, in respect of the land, and his holding is defined as all the arable land in his occupation in the State. If the holding comprises more than one farm, the occupier may use his discretion as to the farm or farms on which he will cultivate the requisite area. In case the rated occupier of a holding is absent from the State any person authorised by such occupier to make lettings of such holding on his behalf will, for the purposes of the Order, be deemed to be the occupier.

Production of the ordinary farm and garden tillage crops, i.e., cereals, potatoes, roots and other green crops, fruit, vegetables, flax and tobacco, ranks as cultivation. Grass clover or rape, whether mown or grazed, do not, however, rank as cultivated crops for the purposes of the Order. Where any part of a holding to which Order applies has been sown in the year 1941 with wheat, oats, barley or rye, for harvesting in the year 1942, such part shall be deemed to have been sown in the year 1942.

The Order does not apply to any holding comprising less than ten Statute acres of arable land or to lands required for military purposes, or comprised in a public park, public recreation ground or an aerodrome. The Minister for Agriculture may, subject to certain conditions, declare a holding or a portion thereof to be excepted from the provisions of the Order. The classes of land which may be so excepted are those used for industrial purposes, accommodation paddocks for cattle and sheep, stud farms on which high-class thoroughbred horses are maintained, racecourse tracks and stand enclosures, tracks for the training of racehorses by licensed trainers, show grounds, sports grounds and school and college playing fields.

Full particulars of the conditions on which exception may be granted are set out in the Order and also on the form of application for exception, which may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture (Tillage Branch). An occupier of ten or more Statute acres of arable land, all or portion of which is used for any of the above-mentioned purposes, must, if he wishes to be relieved, wholly or partially, from the obligation imposed by the Order, lodge his application on the appropriate form with the Department not later than 1st December, 1941.

The Minister for Agriculture is empowered on or after 14th January, 1942, to take possession of a holding and cultivate it or arrange for its cultivation in case he is satisfied that the occupier has not taken reasonable steps towards complying with the Order.

Copies of the Order will be placed on sale without delay and will be purchasable from the Government Publications Sale Office, 3/4 College street, Dublin or from any bookseller.

Mr. Churchill's Warning

The Far Eastern crisis has taken a surprising turn. Hitherto most of the threatening has been done by the Japanese, but the procedure was reversed on Monday afternoon when Mr. Winston Churchill told them flatly that, if war should break out between Japan and the United States, Great Britain would declare war against Japan within the hour. Statesmen of Mr. Churchill's eminence do not say things of this kind without good reason, and one must draw the inference that the trouble in the Pacific has been far more serious than most people imagined. It has been serious enough, at all events, to justify a formidable concentration of British warships in the neighbourhood of Singapore, and, apparently, to inspire an intimate exchange of staff talks between London and Washington. Even yet, however, the Japanese plans are obscure. They have been a subject of speculation for many weeks, ever since Prince Konoye's comparatively "moderate" Cabinet was superseded by General Tojo's militaristic Government. Many people have believed that Japan is ready to move against the Soviet Far Eastern Army, others that her ambition is Thailand, followed by the Netherlands East Indies, and, in course of time, Singapore; others, again, maintain that her purpose is nothing more ambitious than an intensification of the war against China. It would be easy to read too much into Mr. Churchill's speech, but both its manner and its matter suggest that, if Japan takes any of these courses, the United States and Great Britain will "come in" against her. He talks openly of the Chinese people's "noble resistance to invasion and exploitation," declares that a Japanese victory over them would be a "disaster of the first magnitude to world civilisation," and says that every preparation "to defend the common cause now at stake" has been made. Naturally, his speech has had a bad press in Japan, and a particularly good one in China, where it is hailed as the first concrete evidence that Great Britain regards herself as China's ally, and as an indication that solid help will be forthcoming. The next move lies with Japan. Whatever she has made up her mind to do, she must do at once or abandon. On the one hand, she faces inevitable embroilment with Great Britain and the United States; if she selects the other course her Cabinet will be discredited in her people's eyes, and her hope of expansion will be postponed—perhaps, sine die.

A week or two ago it looked as if an attack upon Siberia was the Japanese objective, but fresh news since then has prompted a different view of the situation. It has been reported that the bulk of Japan's available forces are being concentrated in French Indo-China, conveniently to Thailand and Malaya. Precisely what use she proposes—or proposed—to make of them remains unknown. Marshal Chiang Kai-shek is evidently of the opinion that she hopes to deliver a crushing assault upon the Burma Road, which for a long time past has been his chief channel of supply; but there is always the danger that, having struck at Thailand, she may turn her attentions to Burma and Malaya, with Singapore as the final objective. In either event, the United States and Britain would find themselves in grave danger. The loss of Singapore, of course, would mean the end of British power in Far Eastern waters and Australia's exposure to early conquest, while the United States would stand a poor chance of retaining any of her possessions in the Pacific. A Japanese victory over Marshal Chiang Kai-shek would have almost as grave, though longer delayed, consequences; for it would mean the release for action of formidable Japanese armies. The threat of a Japanese advance has been sufficient to retain substantial British forces in the Pacific—forces which, in other circumstances, could be used with profit in Europe or Northern Africa—but an actual embroilment of Japan with Britain and America would have far-reaching effects upon the greater war. It would compel the Americans, for one thing, to send westwards many of the supplies that they send to Great Britain nowadays; it might require the transfer to Chinese waters of some of the ships of war that now assist the Royal Navy in the Atlantic, and it would constrain Britain to divide her forces and fight in another "theatre," without any similar dispersal of Germany's energies. Doubtless, Japan would have moved before now if the "Axis" Powers had been in a position to afford her any practical help, but they cannot reach the Pacific, and there are few signs of a major diversion—such as an invasion of England—which would draw the Anglo-American fire. Japan may feel herself strong enough to try conclusions, but she faces a terrible risk.

Oh! Mr. Porter

A New York gossip-writer has made the astounding discovery that Cole Porter, the composer of "hit" tunes, does some of his best work at parties. "The noisier the parties," says the writer, "the better Cole Porter likes it." He lounges in a corner, it seems, and jots down music and lyrics while engaging in conversation around him. Apart from the fact that anybody called Cole Porter must almost of necessity be a law unto himself, there is really nothing staggering in this. Musical history is full of such (shall we say?) eccentricities. Does Dr. Percy Grainger not always dress himself up in yachting costume before composing? Did not that strange, warped "modernist," Bernard van Dieren, always write white notes on a black background? Wagner could not abide sharp corners, and could only work in a study in which every angle and angular object had been draped in silk. Haydn, rising at five in the morning, always began his day dressed from wig to toe in his ruffled and flounced "Sunday best" clothes. Erik Satie, father of "Les Six," himself confessed that he wrote best outside a Parisian café, to the accompaniment of hooting taxis—a fact which must be apparent to even the most casual of his listeners. Mozart, over one hundred and fifty years ago, surely went one better than even Mr. Porter by composing his finest symphonies and three of the greatest operas in the world while playing skittles and billiards. What does this all mean? That all musicians—from Palestrina to Porter, as it were—are queer fellows? Literature had, and has, its queer fellows. All artists—except, perhaps, R.A.s and R.H.A.s—enjoy in varying degrees the reputation of being equally "queer." Think of your own little mannerisms—without which life would seem unlivable. Mannerisms? Superstitions? Call them what you will, they are all part of our daily lives—from the morning ritual of putting on your left shoe first to sitting (wherever possible) on the left-hand side of the 'bus. A mannerism, it seems, is only a mannerism when it belongs to someone else. When we do it ourselves it at once becomes known by the more respectable label of "habit."

Fires in Dublin

The report of the Dublin Fire Brigade for the administrative year ending on March 31st last has been published, and seems to be highly satisfactory. During the year the Fire Brigade extinguished 411 fires in all. The actual damage to insured premises in these outbreaks amounted to £92,707, but it has been estimated that the total value of the property directly at risk amounted to something like £1,451,340—so that, even at the high running cost of £45,000 a year, the Dublin Fire Service is a sound investment for the citizens of Dublin. This figure of £45,000 also includes £3,600, allowed for the cost of maintaining the accidental ambulance service, which in the past year effected 3,806 removals, the greatest number ever dealt with in one year. Only two lives were lost at fires which the Dublin Fire Brigade attended, and only four people died later from injuries received during the fires. Of the 411 fires extinguished in the year, only ten could be called serious; that is to say, in only ten cases did the estimated damage amount to the figure £1,000. Defective flues and hearths accounted for the greater number of the outbreaks, due, according to the opinion of authorities on the matter, "mainly to the great number of old buildings in the city." During the year the Fire Brigade answered 141 false alarms, and of these 92 were maliciously put into operation. This is a point which, we feel, ought to be stressed. In times such as the present, when it is essential that every available drop of fuel should be conserved, and the Fire Brigade should be kept, as far as possible, in the station ready for any emergency, it is outrageous that practical jokers should be allowed to put a false alarm into operation and call out the fire engine. Admittedly, it is not always easy to find the culprit in such a case; but the punishment for infringement of the law in this respect should be made severe enough to discourage any would-be practical jokers.

Membership of the Irish Church Association, of which a successful Northern branch meets regularly in Belfast, is open to laymen who are members of the Church of Ireland, as well as to clergymen. The meetings of the Association provide a useful opportunity for members of the clergy and laity to meet together in an informal atmosphere for the discussion of matters pertaining to the welfare of the Church of Ireland.

EMERGENCY LAUNDRY SERVICE

Most of the Dublin laundries have co-operated in an emergency laundry service to meet the difficulty in obtaining washing and heating requisites on the part of the public. The service resembles the familiar "bag wash," except that the articles are not measured by weight, but are priced individually.

This plan is said to work out cheaper than the weight process, and the articles are priced extremely reasonably. They are washed, ironed and delivered, but not starched.

REMEMBRANCE

By PAMELA HINKSON

FOR all the special poignance of this Commemoration of lost Peace, there was a spiritual symbolism to be felt in the air of the beautiful Memorial Garden, in which we remembered our 50,000 Irish dead of twenty-two years ago. They were young who

". . . laid the world away,
Poured out the rich, sweet wine of youth,
And those who would have been their sons,
They gave, their immortality."

Those who belong to this company, which is wider than national barriers, embracing in the end all ex-soldiers of all nations, allies and one-time foes alike—

"I am the enemy you slew, my friend. . ." wrote Wilfred Owen, the loveliest of all the war poets who spilt out their song with their blood—keep the immortal youth that they once symbolised for the world.

That was a war fought by the young, the filled casualty lists naming 18 year old, 19-20. And their companions who survive are "the boys" still to an old Commanding Officer, although, watching the procession go by, one sees that now the majority are grey-haired. But the eternal youth, given to them for such a price, is there, in their unfaltering marching behind the Old Comrades banners of beloved regiments, in the comradeship, the talk that is different for this one day, when we have all stepped back across dividing barriers, speaking a language that we know to those who answer in it.

Through the notes of the Funeral March, while we waited for 11 o'clock, came the sound of falling water—the only sound that reached us, since all outside this Garden lay beyond a distance made by four years' experience that ended twenty-two years ago. I thought at first that it was the rain falling, which had lifted in kindness for the ceremony to which many came without protection. But when I turned my face to the sky no rain fell on it. The falling water was that of a fountain playing eternally in the Garden—flower-filled in summer, rose-filled even this day in November—in the midst of which a building holds the books that contains each name of those 50,000 Irish dead.

The fountain played through the Silence, filling it with a small, soft, healing falling of water. There are such sounds . . . children's voices, too, the flutter of wings . . . that light darkness, bringing the undeniable assurance of immortal beauty, the triumph of the spirit over the body's pain. Here, where we remembered the immortal young of those other years—never to grow old as we shall grow old—we saluted their comrades, inheritors with them of youth immortal.

That is their secret radiant possession, hidden while they go about their business and bear the world's cares and hardships, but which, for one day in the year they reveal, marching as young men march, besides comrades as young men feel for those—though they are now grey-haired. I had written "Here we mourned. . . ." before I heard Wilfred Owen again:

". . . Here is no cause to mourn . . ."

The fountain, the flutter of birds' wings. They had a message in this meeting place of youth—the lost young of those years, the lost young of these, bridging the twenty-two between, to talk the same language, to answer in the same comradeship. But years are no barrier here, where age is of the spirit. Half a century hence in a world, one prays, forever at Peace, ex-Service men may gather at Remembering places in many countries, and as it is with soldiers, there will be no barrier of friend and one-time foe. Only the one essential bond of that inestimable experience. Once in that Memorial Garden where we stood yesterday a woman laid a Flanders Poppy and a Easter Lily, side by side, for her two sons at the foot of the wooden cross that stood for many million graves. Green uniformed Irish soldiers received the party who laid a wreath on the Memorial Cross at the Hibernian Military School. These are messages for Ireland, as those grey-haired ex-Service men of the future of all nations will have a message for the children playing between the fountains and the roses.

For us, the poet who died at twenty-five gave us his beauty and his wisdom, which could hardly have been surpassed in a full life of the "undone years" which stripped the world.

"What candles may be held to speed them all?
Not in the hands of boys but in their eyes
Shall shine the holy glimmer of good-byes.
The pallor of girls' brows shall be their pall.
Their flowers the tenderness of patient minds,
And each slow dusk a drawing-down of blinds."

Their flowers the tenderness of patient minds. . . .

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

WHOLESALE poultry dealers were complaining to-day that they will be allowed only a penny a lb. profit under the scheme whereby Irish turkeys will be distributed here by a co-operative organisation of representative traders operating under the control and auspices of the Ministry of Food. That a penny a lb. may be quite a reasonable profit is the official answer. The trade spokesmen, whom one would not want a dictionary to understand, say that they have to pay for the turkeys before they see them, and will have to bear any loss. Apparently a 14lb. turkey will cost them £1 15s. When drawn and trussed the bird will weigh about 10lb. and will sell at £2 1s. 8d.—the fixed price of 4s. 2d. per lb.—leaving for the transaction a margin of 6s. 8d., from which the wholesaler and retailer have to take their profits.

Threat to Caucasus

If the Germans capture the whole of the Crimea, there will be only a two-mile stretch of water between them and the Caucasian mainland. High British Staff officers under General Wavell's Indian command have been attached for many weeks to the Red Army headquarters at Tiflis, and worked out detailed plans for the disposition of Britain's reputed million and a quarter troops in the Near East. The main British preoccupation for some time has been, of course, the rapid and large-scale movements of troops and supplies from Iraq and India, through Iran, to the Caucasian area, which, if conquered, would present Herr Hitler with both Russian oil and a starting-point for an attack on the Middle East. For the British, the strategic problem includes the Libyan, as well as the Caucasian, front, and there are persistent, but unconfirmed, reports that the offensive in the desert may only be a week or two away.

In Gay Cairo

British officers return from bitter fighting in the desert to the city of Cairo, headquarters of General Auchinleck's Middle East command, with Jerusalem and Beirut as auxiliaries. General Wavell, since he transferred the command to General Auchinleck four months ago, has been firmly established at Simla, with Teheran and Hamaden as auxiliaries. In Cairo, General Auchinleck has under his care colourful battalions of Guards, Indian cavalry, Sikh motorised infantry, South African riflemen, Australian infantry and gunners, Canadians, New Zealanders, French, Czechs, Poles, Yugoslavs, black drivers and batmen from the jungle, and United States' experts and observers. Shepheard's Hotel, the bar of the Continental Savoy, the cricket grounds, and the golf course of the local Gezira Club are as crowded as ever. General Auchinleck is assisted by a galaxy of fighting men in Generals Allen, Cunningham and William Platt; General Blamey, of Australia; Freyberg, the New Zealand general; General Marshall Cornwall and General Sir Henry Maitland-Wilson.

Sir Stafford Cripps

Sir Stafford Cripps may soon be heard in the Commons again, perhaps even as a critic of the Government. He considers that his work in Russia is completed. He has certainly proved a very successful Ambassador, even if the turn of events was in his favour.

Roosevelt's Bodyguard

Rules for the protection of President Roosevelt have been tightened up, and it is now the regular thing that before he visits anywhere all employés, regular or extra, are thoroughly investigated and their fingerprints taken. Even the Willard Hotel, where the British Supply Council is housed, has been through this process. The man charged with the President's safety is Colonel Edmund Starling, chief of the White House Secret Service, the worst feature of whose job is the President's urge for informality. Roosevelt hates to feel guarded, and claims that his personal bodyguard, Tommy Qualters, who is an Irish-American, is sufficient. Tommy is 28 and goes wherever the President goes. Early in the morning they are often seen on their way to the White House executive office, and the President often jokes as they walk along. At other times he is absorbed in State affairs, and they make the trip in silence. Tommy thinks Mr. Roosevelt a very human person and the greatest man in the world. He has never heard him once say an angry word.

National Registration

When the "flashlight photograph" of the population of the twenty-six county area is made at midnight on Saturday to compile the National Register, will the Irish authorities follow the English procedure if, and when, issuing national identity cards later? Every person here has a different combination of letters on his or her card following the name and address of the bearer. This combination tells a policeman or other official all sorts of important things. A typical example is AMFQ 4.23. All the public know is that the last figure refers to the holder's "precedence" in the household. In this case the person was the twenty-third of the list of guests staying at a hotel. If he had been the father of a family living in his own home, his code combination would have ended with 1, his wife's with 2, and the children 3 onwards. One would be very surprised if one was told all the things the officials can tell from the identity card. The exact locality in which you were at the time of registration is among the least important things disclosed by the code.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

H. W. Nevinson—Man of War!

With the death of H. W. Nevinson, the distinguished war correspondent, at the age of 85, Ireland has lost a very good friend.

He loved to describe himself as "a man of war," and the description was well merited; for he reported almost every struggle in Europe since the clash of Turkey and Greece in 1897. He was in Ireland during the stormy period which preceded national independence.

When I met him at a London literary club just after the Treaty of 1921-2 he was full of enthusiasm for Ireland. "I don't know what happens to me when I land at Kingstown," he remarked. "But everything takes on a different appearance at once. I look at life in a new way. It makes me believe in the fairies!"

"You'll never land at Kingstown any more," said an Irish member of the club. Nevinson looked startled for a moment. Then his quick reaction time as an old journalist reasserted itself.

"Oh, I know," he said, with a laugh, "it's Dun Laoghaire now. But it's still the gateway of magic for me!"

Initials

Truly, the mania some people have for collecting odd things from hotels, restaurants, and railway restaurant cars, etc., may have far-reaching results.

I met a friend of mine the other day who told me she had been to an auction recently somewhere down the country. Amongst many other purchases in the house-linen line, she had invested in two dozen table-napkins.

"Imagine my annoyance," she related, "when I discovered that they were all stamped most obviously by Canadian Pacific Railways, Moser Hotel, and Silver Moon Restaurant, Grand Union Saratoga, etc."

"But," I said, "surely you can make use of them in your own house?"

"Unfortunately, no," she said. "You see, I run a guest house, and my guests might tend to lose confidence in my integrity, in spite of the fact that I cannot lay claim to be at all widely travelled, the only bright aspect of the case being that I did not buy any face towels."

I tried to think of an answer, but there did not seem to be any. I did think, however, of that most unfortunate set of initials on the cutlery of the Goodwill Restaurant—G.W.R.

The Gaiety Theatre

Monday, the 17th of November, will be one of the most interesting dates in theatre history in this city; for it marks the seventieth anniversary of the Gaiety Theatre. It is really an unusual occurrence to find a theatre with so many years of continuous playing behind it. For instance, the Theatre Royal might be considered older, as there was a Theatre Royal on the present site before the Gaiety was built; but the theatre there has been rebuilt completely several times, and the tradition completely changed each time.

The "Gaiety," however, is exactly the same to-day as when its doors opened for the first time in November, 1871. It is even presenting exactly the same type of entertainment: serious drama, opera, and the yearly pantomime.

How much some of us theatre-goers wish some of the scenes which have occurred there could happen again!—the performances by Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Mrs. Kendal, Violet Vanbrugh, the Terrys, Ada Rehan or Julia Neilson, the amazing Othello of Tomasso Salvini, not to mention the number of times Hamlet has been represented by Barry Sullivan, Sir Henry Irving, Edwin Booth, F. R. Benson, Beerbohm Tree and Michéal MacLiammoir.

At the moment the management of the Gaiety radiate suppressed excitement as they conjure plans to make this birthday worthy of its predecessors. There are rumours of a special book of the theatre's history, a prologue specially written for the occasion, and, of course, the opening of the Dublin Gate Theatre Productions season. The play is "Cæsar and Cleopatra," by G. B. Shaw, and is one that offers full scope for the splendour and lavishness required for the occasion.

Men of Aran

In Aran, according to the latest report, which I do not quite know whether to believe or not, they are using petrol in their oil lamps. Paraffin oil has become as impossible to obtain there as it is everywhere else, and the available supplies have long since been exhausted.

Petrol, however, there is in plenty, because from time to time full cans are washed up on the shores from wrecked ships. Since there are no motor-cars or motor-cycles on Aran, the petrol cannot be used in this way, and, rather than waste it, the inhabitants use it in their lamps.

I hear that from time to time the lamps explode, but that is considered better than sitting in the dark.

If this report is true I cannot see why the inhabitants of Aran do not take the petrol to the mainland and sell it at a premium, but, perhaps, there is some restriction to prevent them from doing so.

More About Omar

A correspondent writes:—

Your editorial remarks about Omar Khayyam reminded me that it was Dante Gabriel Rossetti who made the discovery of Fitzgerald's first edition of Omar Khayyam. He found innumerable copies lying in a penny tray on a second-hand bookstall.

There is a delightful novel written round Omar and the notorious Old Man of the Mountains by the Egyptologist, the late Arthur Weigall. Entitled "The Garden of Paradise," it gives a vivid picture of old Iran and its roses—of Omar the astronomer, as well as of Omar the poet—and shows what, I fancy, is the real philosophy behind the quatrains.

How many people know that Rudyard Kipling's father, Lockwood Kipling, also translated the quatrains? I can recollect but two lines. Comparing himself to a jug, the poet says: "This handle that you see upon its side, Has many a time twined round a slender waist."

I think that Omar is still quoted, and that he will never die.

VOLUNTARY SCHOOL GUIDES

It was unanimously decided at a meeting of the "Safety First" Association of Ireland at 19 Kildare street, on Monday, to make a fresh appeal for the recruitment of voluntary school guides. The proposal has the approval of the Garda Siochana, since of the 1,257 pedestrians killed and injured in Eire last year, 538 were children. It was also decided to write to the Dublin City Manager to suggest the desirability of a compulsory queue system at city 'bus termini and the erection of iron railings to facilitate the formation of these queues.

DUBLIN DIAMOND SHORTAGE

There is a very big demand for diamonds at present in Dublin, but, according to a leading diamond merchant, there are very few for sale. A diamond ring worth £50 before the war is now said to be worth more than double this amount, and would probably fetch £150 in England. Practically no diamond supplies are at present reaching this country, and people are generally holding on to their jewellery rather than selling it, in spite of the high prices to be obtained.

The demand for diamonds is said to be even greater in Belfast than in Dublin, largely due to the fact that, in addition to the general tendency to invest in precious stones, there is the additional factor in Northern Ireland of unusually high wages.

BEQUEST TO ROYAL IRISH ACADEMY

A sixteenth century propagandist tract to encourage the exploitation of Ireland in the economic interest of England was the subject of a paper read by Mr. David B. Quinn before Monday's meeting of the Royal Irish Academy.

Reference was made to the Richard D'Alton memorial bequest of £500, under the will of Mrs. Alice Kennedy, which provides a fund to advance the study of Irish, and a gift of MSS. and books, originally the property of Richard D'Alton. The Academy was stated to have already received the bequest.

RED CROSS FIRST-AID DISPLAY

Bombs, high explosives, incendiaries and gas will be used for the first time in this country as the Department of Defence's contribution to the realism of a demonstration of first-aid work under war conditions by members of the Irish Red Cross at the Old Belvedere R.F.C. ground, Jones's road, on Sunday afternoon next. Before the demonstration the colours of the Headquarters Division will be blessed by the Very Rev. Archdeacon McMahon, P.P., and presented by Mr. Rory Henderson, Co. Divisional Director, on behalf of the County Committee of the Irish Red Cross Society.

CASE OF MR. CAHIR HEALY

WHY MR. McGOVERN WANTS TO VISIT IRELAND

The refusal of Mr. Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary, to allow Mr. John McGovern, M.P., to visit Ireland is likely to be raised again in Parliament, says the Press Association Lobby Correspondent.

Mr. McGovern has written another letter to Mr. Osbert Peake, Under-Secretary at the Home Office, in which he mentions other reasons for wanting to go to Ireland, besides investigating reasons for the detention under the Defence Regulations of Mr. Cahir Healy.

Mr. McGovern says that he is anxious to see two relatives of his, who are police officials in Northern Ireland, a Labour M.P. in the Northern Ireland Parliament, and members of the Belfast City Council. In Eire he wishes to see Mr. de Valera, two Labour M.P.s, and the Lord Mayor of Dublin.

It is his hope to discuss post-war problems, municipal developments, and the attitude to Nazism. He considers that to fit himself for parliamentary representation he should know the ideas of the people in these States.

Mr. Peake has not yet replied to the letter.

PARLIAMENTARY REPLIES

Mr. Herbert Morrison, British Home Secretary, in a written reply to a question concerning Mr. Cahir Healy, the Northern Ireland M.P., says: "As Mr. Cahir Healy has expressed no wish that Mr. John McGovern, member for Shettleston, should go to Ireland to ascertain matters material to Mr. Healy's case, I regret that on the information at present before me I can find no grounds why I should be justified in authorising a travel permit for Mr. McGovern."

Major Lloyd George, Parliamentary Secretary, Ministry of Food, writes to Mr. McGovern that the regulations governing the receipt of food from overseas permit only genuine unsolicited gifts of small quantities at infrequent intervals. "The Food Minister would not be justified in making exceptions in favour of persons detained under the defence regulations which would not be made for other people.

Mr. McGovern also questioned the delay in a registered letter posted in Eire on August 25 and delivered to Mr. Healy in Brixton Prison on September 24. In a written reply, Mr. Brendan Bracken, Minister of Information, states that the delay was due to the necessity of referring to another Government department. Efforts were being made to reduce the delay in such cases in the future.

MODERN BUILDING TECHNIQUE

REPERCUSSIONS ON PROFESSIONS

It is interesting to remember that architecture and engineering did not become separate occupations until comparatively recently, said Mr. T. A. Garland, speaking to the Architectural Association of Ireland last night on the subject of "The Architect and his Engineer."

Many modern writers were of the opinion, said Mr. Garland, that architects should again become engineers or engineers' architects. They pointed out that the unity and character of a design must suffer if too many experts prescribe their own special treatment. But it must be admitted that we are now living in a period of intense and ever-changing development. These changes have been so rapid that even the most skilled engineers know very little of the remarkable possibilities of the newer materials and methods of construction. The architect also finds himself in much the same position. No real and lasting progress will be made in the field of modern building unless the team contains men highly trained in the science of using materials in the most economical manner.

OBITUARY

MR. THOMAS BENNETT CASE

We regret to announce the death, which occurred on Monday last, of Mr. Thomas Bennett Case, "Thornfield," managing director of Arthur Guinness, Son and Co., Ltd. Mr. Case was the son of the late Thomas Case, President of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, one of the best Oxonians of his day, and of Mrs. Case, daughter of the well-known musical composer, Sterndale Bennett, from whom, no doubt, he derived his life-long devotion to music.

MR. T. B. CASE.

Mr. Case was educated at Winchester and at Magdalen College, Oxford, and took highest honours in science. He was extremely popular as an undergraduate, and was a member of the Oxford Cricket team against Cambridge. He was appointed junior brewer at St. James's Gate on September 4th, 1893, and became assistant managing director on June 1st, 1919. He was appointed managing director on December 1st, 1927, a position which he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Case always took a deep interest in St. Columba's College, of which he was a Fellow. He was chairman for the last four years of the Finance Committee, and was specially interested in the College Musical Society. He was also a Governor of the King's Hospital, Dublin.

Mr. Case married a daughter of the late Sir Walter Armstrong, Director of the National Gallery, Dublin, who survives him, and had one son, who was accidentally killed some years ago.

MR. R. F. COPELAND

The death has taken place at his residence, Seapoint, Balbriggan, of Mr. Richard Francis Copeland, late Audit Inspector, Great Northern Railway. He had been for close on a half-century in the service of the Great Northern Company, and was one of its best-known officials. Mr. Copeland commenced his career in Dublin, and subsequently worked in Belfast, Belturbet, Dungannon and Armagh. He resided in the latter city for about thirty years, and was for a lengthy period Chairman of Armagh Urban District Council.

"RIGOLETTO" AT THE GAIETY

"Rigoletto" was repeated by the Dublin Grand Opera Society before a large audience in the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, last night. Once again the outstanding feature was John Lynskey's reading of the rôle of the Jester. James Johnston was in splendid singing form, and had good support from Moira Griffith, who was heard to much better advantage in the rôle of Gilda. The whole production showed a greater steadiness than on the first showing last week. Mr. Charles Lynch conducted.

To-night—"La Tosca."

Meath Wants 45/- for Wheat.—Meath County Committee of Agriculture has passed a resolution asking that the price of wheat be increased to 45/- per barrel. A resolution from the Cork Committee "requesting the Government to pay Eire farmers the sum of £2 for each acre of grass land which they plough and sow with wheat for 1942," was "marked read."

REMEMBRANCE DAY IN DUBLIN

AT GARDEN OF REMEMBRANCE

IN Dublin yesterday thousands of Irishmen and Irishwomen gathered, with the quiet simplicity which has marked each 11th day of November of the past twenty-three years, round the Irish National War Memorial at Islandbridge, Dublin.

On the wet grass below the Memorial, which was raised in the beautiful Garden of Remembrance, hundreds stood flanking the approaches, while the rising bank behind silhouetted rank upon rank against the grey sky. Directly behind the Memorial stood Sir John Maffey, G.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., British Representative, and a large number of the Diplomatic Corps.

The ceremony began with the playing of Chopin's Funeral March by the British Legion Band, under the baton of its veteran bandmaster, Mr. W. Rafter. After a brief silence, the bugles sounded the "Last Post," and then the two minutes' silence was observed.

Following the "Réveillé," while ex-Service men, diplomatists and civilians still stood uncovered, the crowd sang, and then came the laying of wreaths at the foot of the Memorial. The march-past of the contingents was led by Mr. A. P. Connolly, chairman of Southern Ireland Area, British Legion.

THE WREATHS

The first to lay a wreath was Major-General Sir William Hickie, K.C.B., on behalf of the British Legion (Southern Ireland Area). After him came the Marquess and Marchioness of Headfort, with wreaths commemorating, respectively, the 10th and 16th Irish Divisions. The British Legion (Northern Ireland Area) was represented by Captain J. L. Bennet, M.A., and then came His Excellency Sir John L. Maffey, G.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., C.S.I., C.I.E., British Representative. Following them were His Excellency John D. Kearney, K.C.B., High Commissioner for Canada; His Excellency David Gray, American Minister; His Excellency Maurice Goor, Belgian Minister, and His Excellency Marie Xavier de Laforcade, French Minister.

Others to lay wreaths were:—Dr. K. Kostal, Czecho-Slovakian Consulate; Mr. Victor G. Davey, Royal Yugo-Slav Consulate; M. W. T. Dobrzynski, Polish Consulate; Mr. I. R. A. W. Weenink, Consulate for the Netherlands; Mr. A. P. Connolly, British Empire Service League; the Earl of Granard, K.P., Royal Irish Regiment; Sergeant-Major Smith, Royal Irish Fusiliers; Mr. W. Austin, Royal Irish Rifles, Dublin Branch; Mr. J. Mapother, Royal Artillery; Major H. C. Crozier, M.C., Royal Dublin Fusiliers; Brigadier-General D. T. Hammond, C.B., C.B.E., Connaught Rangers; Mr. P. J. Meagher, South Irish Horse; Major J. Barnewall, D.S.O., M.C., Leinster Regiment; Mr. W. Sedon, 5th Royal Irish Lancers; Captain J. H. Webb, O.B.E., R.N., Royal Naval O.C.A.; Lieutenant A. P. Ashman, Old Contemptibles' Association.

Dr. H. Emerson, Ministry of Pensions; Mr. J. O'Brien, Ministry of Pensions Hospital; Professor W. E. Thrift, Provost, Trinity College, Dublin; Alderman A. Byrne, T.D.; Major H. C. THE CATHEDRALS

Short Services of Remembrance, during which the two minutes' silence was observed, were held in cathedrals and churches throughout Ireland yesterday. At St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, the Service was conducted by the Dean, the Rev. D. F. R. Wilson, and other clergy taking part were the Rev. E. Owen and the Rev. J. L. P. Atkinson, Dean and Vicar. The hymn, "O Valiant Hearts," was sung by the choir, and the lessons were read by two of the senior boys of the Cathedral Grammar School. Dr. George H. P. Hewson, M.A., was at the organ. Many members of the congregation wore medals.

After the Service a wreath was laid on the South Irish Horse War Memorial by Major O'Grady, who was accompanied by Captain Ferguson, and prayers were recited by the Dean.

At Christ Church Cathedral, Litany was recited and Holy Communion celebrated. The short Service was conducted by the Dean, the Very Rev. E. H. Lewis-Crosby, who was accompanied by the Rev. D. M. Carmody. At the organ was Mr. T. H. Weaving, and the hymn, "Peace, Perfect Peace," was sung.

At St. Columba's College, the Chaplain, the Rev. Lynn Millar, conducted the Service, and afterwards the Warden and Senior Prefect laid wreaths on the War Memorial.

At the Cenotaph in South Mall, Cork, wreaths were laid by the British Legion, Cork, and the two minutes' silence was kept.

There were similar ceremonies and Church Services at Waterford and Carrick-on-Shannon.

THREE YEARS FOR LISMORE MAN

William Baldwin (58), merchant, Main street, Lismore, was, at Waterford Circuit Court yesterday, sentenced to three years' penal servitude by Judge Sealy for having carnal knowledge of a girl under seventeen years of age. James Duggan, Dungarvan, a young man described as the son of a postal official, was sentenced to nine months' hard labour in respect of a similar offence against another young girl, also under statutory age.

In passing sentences, Judge Sealy said:—I wish that the Press would publish throughout the length and breadth of the land that this crime is punishable by penal servitude for life. This class of offence is too common throughout the country and must be stopped.

Nicholas Barry, Belle Lake, Dunmore East, Co. Waterford, was found not guilty by a jury of a similar offence and was discharged.

BOG WORKERS' WAGES

Having expressed the opinion that the conditions under which city workers were employed on the Corporation turf-cutting scheme at Inchamay bog were appalling, the Cork Corporation, at its meeting last night, decided to recommend to the Department of Local Government and Public Health that, irrespective of broken time, the men should be paid at the rate of 35s. per week.

When questioned on the proposal for establishing communal kitchens in the city, the City Manager said that he had made inquiries from centres in touch with the prevailing conditions, and he was not satisfied that the necessity existed at the moment.

ORIGINS OF IRISH AGRICULTURE

Agriculture has always been the most important industry in this country, and at present, when supplies from overseas are so much restricted, is of especial interest to all. The Royal Dublin Society's lecture on its origins by Dr. Estyn Evans on Friday next should, therefore, have a wide appeal. Dr. Evans is Lecturer in Geography in Queen's University, Belfast. His lecture will be illustrated by slides.

IRISH WOMEN CITIZENS' MEETING

Beatrice Webb's book, "My Apprenticeship," was the subject of an interesting talk given by Mrs. Doreen Ditchburn at yesterday's meeting of the Irish Women Citizens' Association at No. 5 Leinster street, Dublin.

The book dealt with Beatrice Webb's work in assisting Charles Booth with his "Life and Labour of the People of London," and her own inquiry into dock labour and the sweating system.

Mrs. Ditchburn discussed whether more good was done by those who work personally among a few poor families or by those who follow Beatrice Webb's method of social investigation and agitation for changes in the law.

Mrs. Kyle was in the chair.

TEACHERS AND SCHOOL HOURS

The Dublin Branch of the Association of Secondary Teachers, at their monthly meeting, passed the following resolution:—

"That this Branch protests against the request of the Department of Education to begin work in secondary schools at 10 a.m., owing to transport difficulties."

The Branch considers that such an arrangement will only tend to lengthen the children's school day—that is, the period between breakfast and dinner. It also feels that the special rail facilities for school children hitherto at their disposal will no longer be available.

FEWER ON RELIEF

The number of persons (men, women and children) in receipt of public assistance undes the Poor Law on the last Saturday of September, 1941, was 106,749, or 2,633 less than the previous month. This is equivalent to 35.6 per 1,000 of the estimated population.

The number of persons in receipt of home assistance was 86,241, or 2,779 less than the previous month. The average cost of home assistance was £13,075 per week, or £312 more than in the previous month and £266 more per week than in September, 1940.

Mr. H. M. Thompson, K.C., former Recorder of Belfast, has been elected a Bencher of the Inns of Court, Northern Ireland.

INDUSTRY AND THE INDIVIDUAL

MINISTER STRESSES NEED OF EFFORT

MR. SEAN LEMASS, Minister for Supplies, yesterday distributed the prizes to the successful competitors in the inventions competition organised by the N.A.I.D.A., and pledged his personal and official support to these competitions in the future.

The meeting was held at the offices of the N.A.I.D.A., St. Stephen's Green, Dublin.

Mr. Patrick O Caoimh, President of the National Agricultural and Industrial Development Association, congratulated the successful competitors, and particularly the Ulster Club on securing the first and second prizes in the national aeroplane flying contest. The success of the inventions competitions was, he said, mainly due to Mr. F. M. Summerfield and his tireless sub-committee. There were thirty entrants from Dublin City and County and twenty-two from the provinces.

MINISTER'S PRAISE

Mr. Lemass, having distributed the prizes and certificates, congratulated the Association upon the continued success of their inventions and model competition. He thought that the Council of the Association, which inaugurated this competition, deserved not merely congratulations, but also the sincere thanks of everybody who was interested in our national development. Those, he said, who conceived the idea of competition must have had in mind the necessity of teaching our people the lesson that industrial development called for a high degree of inventiveness and ingenuity from those participating in it. No doubt, Government policies—tariffs, protection, or even the possession or control of exceptional resources of raw materials—were desirable, and even necessary, but they would not produce results unless they were backed by individual initiative, individual courage, and a high degree of individual skill. The idea that Irish industry must, of necessity, be an artificial growth, and be limited in its scope to the home market, was both wrong and dangerous. In other countries difficulties of raw materials and supply, and a limited home market, were overcome by individual initiative, and a high level of technical competence amongst the workers. "What others have done," said Mr. Lemass, "we also can do." If the need for the competition existed in times of peace, it existed in double measure in times of war. Out of their many necessities there arose the need for many improvisations of materials and methods of production to enable them to overcome the difficulties created by the interruption of their overseas trade. When necessities of life were in short supply the important thing was to increase that supply and not to have due regard to the cost, and so it might be that methods adopted to deal with their present difficulties would not be of permanent utility in the promotion of their industrial development.

AFTER THE WAR

"I still believe that for this country the time of greatest danger and greatest difficulty may well be when the war is over, and when the great Empires have ceased fighting. Certainly we will face then many problems of industrial and social reconstruction, which will not be easily solved, but we will be able more easily to solve these problems if in the meantime we increase our knowledge of ways and means by which the utilisation of our resources and our labour for the production of wealth can be expanded."

On the motion of the Lord Mayor (Mr. P. S. Doyle, T.D.), seconded by Mr. M. W. O'Reilly, a vote of thanks to the Minister was adopted with acclamation.

Mr. F. M. Summerfield mentioned that the Inventions Exhibition would be opened at the Mansion House, Dublin, on 17th inst.

WASTE PAPER COLLECTION

WORK OF ST. JOHN AMBULANCE BRIGADE

The St. John Ambulance Brigade was not invited to attend the conference at which the Department of Supplies discussed plans for speeding the waste paper campaign with representatives from the St. Vincent de Paul Society, the Legion of Mary, the Catholic Boy Scouts and merchants. This was stated by Mrs. Hilda Nolan, Organising Secretary of the St. John Ambulance waste paper campaign, to an Irish Times reporter yesterday.

"We heard nothing about the conference until it was over," she said, "which is very surprising, considering that we have been collecting longer than any other organisation. We began in May, 1940, and at first we collected £38 worth of paper a month. Now we are collecting an average of £65 worth a month."

In the early part of September this year the three other voluntary organisations were allowed to take part in broadcasts to support their cause. When Mrs. Nolan asked the authorities for this privilege she was told that it would be impossible, "because there have already been three broadcasts."

An official of Messrs. Duan, Ltd., of Princes street, one of the leading paper merchants, told our reporter that he could not understand why there was no official support for the Brigade, which he knew to be the biggest collector in the country. The experience of the members would have proved an invaluable aid to the new organisations.

Yesterday an official of the Department of Supplies told the Irish Times that the Department was unaware that the St. John Ambulance Brigade collected waste paper.

MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL

The half-yearly meeting of the Governors of the Masonic Boys' School was held on Tuesday at the Schoolhouse, Clonskeagh, when the report of the scrutineers of the ballot for the election of six pupils was read. It was unanimously resolved that the six candidates who obtained the highest number of votes be elected pupils of the school. Accordingly, Derek J. Ryan, Desmond McE. Notley, Samuel J. McCracken, Thomas K. B. Boyd, John M. Williamson and Noel T. George were declared duly elected pupils of the school.

CONCERT BY GOOD COMPANIONS

A concert organised in aid of the funds of the Mount Street Club Shop Committee will be given on Tuesday next in the Leinster Hall, Royal Hibernian Hotel, by The Good Companions, assisted by Mr. Clyde Twelvetrees. The programme will include groups of popular part-songs and madrigals, Sir Walford Davies' attractive set of nursery rhymes, and will conclude with a performance of Brahms' Liebeslieder waltzes with piano duet accompaniment. Mr. Twelvetrees' violoncello solos will be an outstanding feature of the evening. The accompanists will be Miss Madge Bradbury and Mrs. Coyle. The concert has been timed to conclude before 10 p.m.

FORD MOTOR INDUSTRY

The remarkable development all over the world of the Ford motor industry was the subject of an interesting talk given yesterday at Cork Rotary Club luncheon, by Mr. T. F. O'Mahony, advertising manager of Messrs. Ford, Cork. Mr. O'Mahony also described the work at numerous Ford plants in America, etc. Mr. John J. Horgan, President of the Rotary Club, thanked Mr. O'Mahony for his admirable discourse.

NATURAL

The choice of the girl with fine, blonde skin—Pond's Natural—a powder containing the invisible tints of her own complexion, skilfully blended exactly to match and accentuate the natural transparency which makes blonde skin so adorable. And she will find this powder exquisitely fine because it is filtered through sheerest silk. As a consequence it goes on with exceptional smoothness, clings for hours, and cannot clog the pores. Scientists tested hundreds of complexions through the colourscope in order to determine what natural tints comprise skin beauty. They found that there were several distinct types of skin colouring. That is why Pond's make their non-detectable powder in six shades—one for each type.

Coughing MADE HER GASP for AIR

Mrs. E. S. writes: Famel ends terrible cough

"I have had a terrible cough for nearly three years. The doctor told me it might go when baby was born, but she is now two years old and the cold went worse instead of better. I didn't know what it was to have a good sleep, couldn't walk for gasping for air. I went so thin. I was a perfect wreck, gradually growing worse and worse. Then I tried this wonderful remedy. I only got a small size, but after the bottle I could lie down for a good night's sleep. It has been a godsend to me, getting to know this Famel Syrup. It is helping me up wonderfully—I would never have believed I could have felt so well so quickly. I am telling everyone I meet and will keep on doing so."

Plain, ordinary coughs, "hangovers" from 'flu, or bronchitis, in fact any respiratory complication—all need the same rapid end when you take Famel Syrup. This is proved by thousands of unsolicited statements from Famel users all over the world.

For Famel is not "just another cough mixture." It is the cough medicine containing soluble lactocreosote—a wonderful curative agent that has the power to penetrate into the bloodstream and destroy the dangerous cough-producing germs that thrive there. In addition, Famel contains soothing balsams that ease the inflamed membranes, and valuable restoratives that help to build up your much-needed powers of resistance against infection.

Whether you're a chronic sufferer from a persistent cough, or have just a "touch of the throat"—you need Famel NOW! It's a wise precaution to keep a bottle in the home—it's your surest protection against throat and lung ailments of all kinds.

CINEMA CLOSED BY ROBBERY

The Strand Street Cinema, Skerries, Co. Dublin, has had to close owing to the robbery of essential parts of its machinery during last week-end. The premises, which are owned by Mr. L. Flanagan, were broken into and £140 worth of property taken, including machine parts, films, a gramophone and records. The machine parts are now difficult, if not impossible, to replace. Up to yesterday no trace had been found of the missing property.

DUBLIN RELIEF SCHEMES

FUEL AND LIGHTING REQUIREMENTS

Dublin Corporation relief works now employ 800 men, and more would be absorbed if materials were not so scarce, reported the City Manager, Mr. P. J. Hernon, to the meeting of the General Purposes Committee of the Corporation last night. There is £220,000 to be expended on the present works, and further schemes will use up £130,000 more. Mr. Hernon also said that he would set aside some money to help Dublin painters over the Christmas period.

It was agreed to provide meals for children at certain national schools at a cost of £362 up to March 31st, 1942.

It was announced that the Government would be asked to receive a deputation from the Corporation on the fuel and lighting position of Dublin.

STORE CATTLE SALES

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Numbers on offer were smaller, and good forward conditioned cattle again met steady trade at about last week's prices, but younger cattle were not so keenly bid for, and some lots failed to find buyers. MESSRS. CRAIGIE BROS.

Although numbers were not excessive at Messrs. Craigie Bros.' store cattle sale yesterday, prices showed no improvement from last Friday. Shippers were in a quiet mood, but, with more home feeders operating, an almost complete clearance was made of all the aged cattle. Well-bred young stock in demand; rougher sorts harder to cash.

TO PREVENT INFLATION

DRASTIC CANADIAN MEASURES

FROM OUR LONDON FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Of considerable interest in the latest business summary of the Bank of Montreal is the account of the new, and necessarily drastic, steps taken by the Canadian Government in order to place the national economy more firmly upon a war footing and to avert inflation.

In this connection, the most far-reaching and ambitious scheme ever put forward in any democratic country with the purpose of destroying at its source the "vicious spiral" of rising prices and wages has been promulgated. The plan puts a ceiling upon the prices charged for all commodities and all services by freezing these at recent levels. It prohibits any increase in basic wage rates without special permission. It further requires that the cost of living bonus previously applicable to war industries shall apply to all wage-earners, and that this bonus shall be adjusted every three months in accordance with a definite formula.

CEILING ON PRICES

The ceiling on prices will apply to all goods except sales for export, to all rentals, to all services and public utilities, and even to hair cutting, meals and beverages. In respect to wages paid, the only exceptions will be certain small employers, excluded for administrative reasons. The order as to prices and services goes into effect on November 17, on and after which date no price or rate higher than the maximum price and rate charged during the four weeks from September 15 to October 11 may be charged, but, except where minimum prices are fixed, prices will be free to fall below the ceiling.

In the case of agricultural products and of fish the maximum price will be based on market prices during the four weeks prior to October 11 rather than upon the actual selling prices of individuals. In respect to wages the cost of living bonus will apply after November 15. The scheme is admittedly an experiment in the field of political economy, in which Canada is taking the pioneer rôle. Its proclaimed object is twofold—to intensify the war effort and, at the same time, to help prevent inflation, with its inevitable sequel of distress and depression through post-war deflation.

MUNITIONS

The summary also contains some particulars indicating the growing contribution to the British war effort. Thus, according to the Department of Munitions and Supply, the total value of contracts awarded and commitments made between July 14, 1939, and September, 1941, was $2,578,186,766. Of this total $1,530,290,087 was on Canadian account, and the balance, except for some $80,250,000, was on British account.

An enlargement of the Government's chemical and explosive programme, recently announced, will involve an additional expenditure of more than $2,000,000. Total capital expenditures on the twenty-three plants assigned to this programme, of which twenty are already in operation, exceed $112,000,000.

Good headway is being made with the shipbuilding programme and the production of the primary iron and steel plants has been so greatly expanded that they have recently been working on a scale well above their rates capacity.

INCREASED DIVIDEND

An encouraging announcement is that the directors of the Bank of London and South Africa are able to recommend an increased dividend for the year to 30th September last, indicating that the business is benefiting from the improving economic conditions in the Latin-American Republics.

The final payment recommended is 4 per cent., against 3 per cent., making the year's total 6 per cent., compared with 5 per cent. for each of the three preceding years. This is the best distribution since 9 per cent. paid for 1929-1930, but in the intervening period of financial depression the dividend did not fall lower than 3 per cent. In 1936 the company acquired the business of the Anglo-South American Bank.

Profits for the past year have not yet been disclosed. For the preceding twelve months earnings were equal to over 19 per cent., but £311,000 of the available profits was appropriated for contingency and taxation reserves. The issued capital is £4,040,000. The £5 stock units are quoted at 6, indicating a yield of 5 per cent.

FRESH SPURT IN HOME RAILS

DUBLIN TRANSPORT ORD. AHEAD

Markets were quieter on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, as public interest was of a selective character, but there was good buying in progress, which produced some firm features. Mr. Churchill's review of the war was well received, and British Industrials advised generally better.

Home Funds were in demand, and there was a slight recovery in values. The Third and Fourth National Loans added fractions, and Financial Agreement Loan hardened to 105⅛. 3½ p.c. War Loan shaded off to 104 5/16.

For the whole of 1940 the increase in gross receipts was only £92,940.

end, the public is turning its attention to other groups, and in particular to Home Rails. This group was strong, and further sharp gains were the order of the day. Great Southern Pref. jumped another point to 16, and the Guaranteed (City of Dublin Junction) gained a like amount, while the Deb. was raised 30/- to 59¾. Great Northern Pref. closed 15/- higher at 31.

There was spirited bidding for Dublin Transport Ord., which left off 1/- up at 17/6. Alliance Gas Ord. rose to 20/3, and Insurance Corporation of Ireland spurted 2/6 to 17/6. Arklow Pottery Pref. tended higher.

Imperial Tobaccos soared a further 1/9 to 126/3, and B.A.T. Ord. made headway to 94/3.

OILS LEAD RISE IN LONDON

DIAMOND SHARES SPARKLE

M. Churchill's speech, combined with Mr. Wendell Willkie's statement regarding Anglo-United States aircraft output, further inspired operators on the London Stock markets yesterday, and under the influence of fresh support on a widely distributed scale prices in nearly all sections continued on the upgrade.

South American securities were again the chief centre of activity, but profit-taking checked the advance in values, and a more colourful section was that for Oil shares, where speculative activity assumed substantial proportions and Trinidad Petroleums shot ahead to 66/3.

Rises in Kaffirs reflected Cape buying in front of the dividends, and it is believed that some of the money to be released from the South African Loan call-up is finding its way back into Kaffirs. Among the non-producers, Libanons spurted to 14/10½ on reports that recent developments have shown improvement.

Jobbers were inclined to quote slightly lower levels for leading British Funds.

SPINNERS' SURPRISE

Fine Cotton Spinners' and Doublers' Association has decided to discontinue the issue of half-yearly accounts. The question of a dividend payment will not be considered until the results for the year to March 31 are ascertained.

This announcement disappointed the market, as it had been expected that, in view of last year's recovery and the good trading reports from Manchester this year, a Preference interim would be forthcoming.

British Rails took on a firmer tendency and finally L.M.S. Ord. was a shade higher at 15⅝.

Turnover in Foreign Rails was again on a substantial scale, but owing to profit-taking few issues were able to pursue their advance.

Industrials were not particularly animated, but the market preserved a firm front and bright features were again noticeable in several directions. Coal shares were among the most favoured issues and leading Rayons were fairly active around their higher levels.

In the Mining market Diamond shares continued to sparkle and Consolidated Diamonds were eventually 15/9—a net gain of 6d.

Interest in Kaffirs was directed mainly to the dividend-payers, among which Goldfields were firm at 40/- following the dividend. Rhodesians made a firm showing.

Oils displayed strength from the outset and in response to lively bidding prices soared throughout the list. Chief honours went to T.P.D.'s, but Anglo-Iranians gained 1/10½ to 40/-, whilst Burmahs and "Shells" were both 1/3 up at 60/- and 55/- respectively. The Eagle "Twins" participated in the advance, Mexicans rising to 12/3 and Canadians to 12/1½d.

In the period from 16th to 31st October the production of creamery butter was approximately 36,057 cwt. Public cold stores received 10,875 cwt. and withdrawals amounted to 1,998 cwt., leaving a net movement of 8,877 cwt. of creamery butter into public cold stores.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN CATTLE

Our cattle supplies showed some decrease on last day, numbers offered being 3,491 head. Yesterday's gathering was of very ordinary, or plain, description, with a conspicuous scarcity of tip-top meated exhibits. The personnel of buyers in home and shipping interests was up to previous numbers, but trade opened with a lukewarm and fencing disposition, in which owners were obliged to accept a good shilling per cwt. less than last Friday. There were, however, a few outstanding beasts, which realised previous values, but these were exceptions, and on the whole market proved a slow and cheaper selling one, some of the rougher element being almost unsaleable. Shippers, being confined to space, were again obliged to show some caution in their selections, and this proved a barrier to expansion in export trade. Beef cows also met a poor inquiry, even the choicer beasts proving slow enough to cash, while aged animals were practically unsaleable. Best bullocks 47/- to 49/-, extra 50/- to 52/-, secondary sorts 44/- to 46/-, rougher 40/- to 43/-; heifers 45/6 to 46/6, extra 47/- to 48/-, useful types 44/- to 45/-, others 40/-; and beef cows 20/- to 30/-, extra up to 40/- per live cwt.

SHEEP AND LAMBS

Market gave 3,513 head to draw upon, most of which were of secondary quality. Sales opened cautiously, with butchers cheaper in their ideas of values, but owners held firm, and only at closing stages of business did prices show an easier trend. Over the day's proceedings the money position varied but little at—Prime wether mutton 10d. to 11d., secondary 9d. to 9½d., best ewes 8d. to 8½d., rougher 7d. to 7½d. per lb.; and lambs 25/- to 40/-, and for outstanding lots up to 55/- each.

DAIRY CATTLE

The market comprised 80 entries, with quality on the whole fairly useful. In the absence of shipping support, sales continue in a slow groove, but anything of outstanding quality could not be purchased at less money, while secondary or doubtful beasts were poorly bid for, prices in most cases being much under owners' ideas of values. In the circumstances the market failed to clear at:—Best cows £25 to £30, heifers £24 to £27, others £20 to £23 per head.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN GRAIN — Oats scarce; other samples in fair supply and well placed at: Wheat 36/- to 40/- ex-farm; oats 18/8, and barley 28/- to 30/- per barrel.

PROVISIONS.

DUBLIN FISH—On offer, 138 boxes from two trawlers, one lot lobsters, 90 boxes herrings, and a small amount from country and local senders. Demand brisk at:—Lobsters 15/- per 13; soles, black, best 2/- to 2/9; turbot 1/8 to 2/4, brill 1/8 to 1/9 per lb., herrings 15/- to 30/-, plaice 50/- to 115/-, cod 98/- to 130/-, whiting 78/- to 124/-, hake 35/- to 136/-, ray 20/- to 57/-, haddock 54/- to 122/-, monkfish 70/- to 90/-, conger eels 35/-, and dabs 17/6 to 22/- per box.

DUBLIN POULTRY.—Supplies continue up to average, and well cleared at firm rates. Chickens 1/7 to 1/8½, hens 1/5 to 1/6, turkeys 2/- to 2/3, fat geese 1/2 to 1/3, ducks, young 1/4 to 1/6 per lb., old 2/- to 2/6 each, pheasants, cocks 5/6, hens 4/6; partridge young 2/6, old 1/6; grouse, young 3/6, old 1/6 to 2/-; hares 1/9 to 2/-, rabbits 2/4, wild duck 2/6, widgeon 1/-, teal 8d. grey plover 9d., green 6d. and snipe 6d. each.

ARKLOW MAN FOUND SHOT

A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest on Mr Clive V. Ruskell, Ballyrichard House, Arklow, held by Dr. Hamilton, Coroner for East Wicklow, in Arklow.

From the evidence it appeared that Mr. Ruskell was a member of a shooting party of four at Ballinaskea last Saturday. He entered a wood carrying a hammer shot gun at full cock, and after the shoot his body was found by Dr. Doyle, a member of the party. Dr. Doyle expressed the opinion that death was due to shock and laceration of the brain from gunshot wounds.

Sergeant Hunt, Garda Siochana, said that from where the body was found he believed that Mr. Ruskell slipped in the brushwood and the gun was discharged, the shot striking the left side of his head.

HOWTH'S WATER SUPPLY

DEPUTATION TO URBAN COUNCIL

"On Sunday morning last the water we got in Howth was just grey slime—like what would come out of a duck pond," said Mrs. B. J. Newcombe, speaking on behalf of a deputation received by the Howth Urban District Council at their meeting last night. The deputation was protesting against the cutting off of the local supply at inconvenient hours.

The Chairman, Mr. T. Muller, T.D., said that the supply was being pumped across the hill from the Vartry supply, and the pressure was very weak. Other water schemes for Howth had to be postponed pending the taking over of the townships under the Greater Dublin plan.

Mr. M. C. Madden, Surveyor, Howth, said that he hoped that the supply would be back to normal in about a week.

Mr. Mullen assured the deputation that the Council would do all in its power to ensure a proper supply.

A resolution was passed protesting against the increased charges for electricity proposed by the E.S.B.
